LODGE SEES DANGERS IN LEAGUE

SLAVS AND ITALIANS CLASH

Report of Fighting on Frontier Over Dalmatian Territorial Claims

By ROBERT J. PREW.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Feb. 28.—An unconfirmed report that fighting had broken out between the Italians and the Jugo-Slavs as a result of the dispute over the disposition of Dalmatian territory, was received here today. Efforts are being made to pacify the Jugo-Slavs and the Italians before the quarrel spreads any further.

The Italians allege that the Serbian army has been mobilized and that Serbia is preparing to back up Jugo-Slavia's claims for territory on the Adriatic littoral.

The Serbians are minimizing the "Laibach incident"—the expulsion of the Italian military mission from Laibach. They say it was only a local matter and will have no serious consequences.

It is semi-officially admitted by the Italians that the frontier has been closed from Tarvis to Fiume. The statement adds:

"The military command at Laibach has suddenly expelled the Italian military mission stationed there in conformity with the terms of the armistice to regulate railway traffic for feeding the Czecho-Slovaks and the Jugo-Slovakia. The local command contended that, as the State of Jugo-Slovakia had been recognized by the entente, Laibach could not any longer be considered part of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Despite their protests Major di Giorgi and all of the officers of the mission were

CROWDS BESIEGE 5-CENT FISH STORES

Boston American five-cent fish store at Broadway and Dorchester streets, South Boston, crowded with many waiting patiently to get in.

At 10 o'clock today the first four of the Boston American's fish stores opened.

These stores, to be followed at once by others, will sell fish at five cents a pound, or absolute cost.

In order to continue a constant supply of fish to the public at this price or at any price within a reasonable figure it is necessary that the public realize that fish can be eaten not once a week, but once or even three times a day.

The Boston American is not opening these stores for profit. It is opening the stores to prove to the public that this fish can be put on the market, provided it is eaten as a staple food, at a profit of from one to two cents a pound.

In other words, the fish which the American is marketing for five cents could be sold by the ordinary retailer for six, seven or eight cents with a profit. When the profit of the retailer becomes over 100 per cent, then the public should look upon it with suspicion.

The message of the American to the people of Boston is "Eat fish and eat lots of it." It should not be a-once-a-week meal but a once-a-day meal. It affords a solution of the high cost of meats problem.

The American today opened stores

SENATOR ADVISES CAUTION

Country Should Hesitate, Says Lodge, Before Abandoning American Policies

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Any League of Nations of which the United States becomes a member will be principally for the benefit of other powers, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts told the Senate today.

"We have the right, therefore, to demand," he said, "that there shall be nothing in any agreement for the maintenance of the world's peace, which is likely to injure the United States or compel from us undue sacrifice, or put us in a position where we may be forced to serve the ambitions of others."

If the United States enters a league Lodge pointed out, it must be for the purpose of maintaining peace in Europe, where all the greatest wars have broken out, and, in Asia, where serious conflicts may arise at any moment. The United States has in the main kept peace in the western hemisphere. It needs no League of Nations for this purpose, he said. It has no boundaries to rectify, no schemes or desires for conquest. No one questions the ability of the United States to keep order in the American hemisphere.

"If the United States enter a league, therefore, it does so for the benefit of the world at large and not for its own benefit," Lodge asserted.

MUST OFFER PROOF.

Lodge wanted to know why the President, after so scrupulously observing the doctrine of Washington, even to the extent of making the United States merely an "associate" of the allied powers, had so suddenly decided to throw it overboard with the signing of the armistice.

"Very complete proof must be offered of the superiority of any new system before we reject the two cardinal principles of the republic—the doctrines of Washington and Monroe," he held.

Despite assertions of the President, Lodge declared that the Paris constitution would give the league power over the immigration policies of the United States.

"If American labor favors putting control of this policy in the hands of other nations they must have radically changed their minds and abandoned

"NIGHTIE" STRIKE IS BROKEN

Breakfast Bell Too Much for Suffragists in Charles Street Jail

The suffs' "nightie strike" at the Charles street jail is "busted." The "nighties," you understand, are still intact—lingerie ribbons, pearly buttons, embroidered pockets and all. But—the breakfast bell rang.

Breakfast was the strike-breaker. When it called the suffs laid down their protests—that is, their "nighties" and went to breakfast—first, of course, putting on something else.

Enemies in the guise of payers of fines—villains armed with pocketbooks and bills—might be waiting to railroad them out of jail. No matter—they took a chance.

ORIGINAL "NIGHTIE" STRIKER.

There are eight suffragists still in jail.

Miss Elsie Hill was the original "nightie striker," when she stayed all day in her cell in bed, so that no one should oust her from jail under false pretences of calling her to the office.

She is the daughter of the late Congressman Hill of Norwalk, Ct., who was in the House when Sheriff John A. Keliher was Congressman. Little did the then Congressman Keliher dream that a day would come when he would be sheriff of a jail in which

White House Denies Wilson "Quotation" Regarding Ireland

Washington, Feb. 28.—The published statement that President Wilson told members of the Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees at the recent White House dinner that "the Irish question was a matter between Ireland and England, and that Ireland would not have any voice in the peace conference at present," was vigorously denied at the White House this afternoon.

"The President wishes me to say that this statement has no foundation in fact and is a deliberate falsehood," said a formal denial issued by Secretary Tumulty.

Senator Borah, in the Senate today, demanded to know what the President did say regarding Ireland. After a whispered conversation with Senator Williams, who was a guest at the dinner, Senator Hitchcock said:

"The President told us that the Irish problem was a domestic issue. It would not come under the jurisdiction of the League."

WOMAN SLAIN, POSSES HUNT BANDITS

New York, Feb. 28.—Search for bandits who murdered Mrs. Julia Wilkins and assaulted her husband, Dr. Walter Wilkins, in their Summer home, Long Beach, last night, was extended to this city and to every town and village on the Long Island railroad today. Posses of deputy sheriffs are searching the woods along the south shore of the island.

The theory is that the murder and robbery—the bandits got more than $200 worth of jewelry and money—was the work of a well-organized band, at least three members of which had an active hand in the crime.

An ordinary rubber overcoat button and half a dozen well-defined finger prints, photographed from various articles of furniture about the house are the most important clues yet obtained.

The finger prints were found by detectives from the office of District Attorney Charles Weeks today. The button was found on the rear porch of the house and is believed to have been torn from the coat of one of the men by Mrs. Wilkins before she was knocked on the head.

PLANNED PAYROLL HOLDUP

Robber Gang Intended to Rob Woman Paymaster of Medfield Hospital

The State authorities are investigating a plot, which was foiled by the eleventh-hour fear of one of the gang, to hold up the woman paymaster of the Medfield State Hospital and rob her of the State money for the monthly payroll of the institution.

Arrests are expected. It is said that the gangsters included a person or persons who had accurate information of the woman paymaster's schedule of trips to meet the payroll money at Medfield railroad station.

The hold-up was "framed" for the last payroll date. But one of the plotters became afraid, was smitten with "cold feet," to use a slang expression.

This timid member of the gang not only refused to go ahead with the robbery plan, but even notified the State authorities, directly or indirectly, so that the holdup, as the story now goes, was not attempted.

Secrecy was maintained by the authorities while their investigation was in progress. But a letter of warning sent out today by State Treasurer Charles L. Burrill to all State institutions caused inquiry which revealed the Medfield story.

Mr. Burrill warned the State institutions to use extra care in guarding money sent to them.

There is no bank in Medfield. The payroll money for the Medfield State Hospital, therefore, is sent out by express to the local railroad station.

The woman paymaster at the institution motors to the railroad station, meets the express messenger, receives the payroll money and motors back to the institution.

The holdup plan was to intercept the woman on her way back from the station and secure the cash.

Washington Headquarters, Soldiers' Service Bureau, Feb. 28.—For the information of all officers and men of the navy and marine corps, all reservists, and all persons in the service of the coast guard, coast and geodetic survey and lighthouse service who are entitled to the benefits of the $60 bonus provision in the revenue act, the Washington headquarters of the Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Hearst newspapers has secured the following official statement of regulations concerning the manner of payment:

1—The beneficiaries of this act are: officers and enlisted men of the regular navy, all reservists, male and female, officers and men of the marine corps, and all persons in the service of the coast guard, coast and geodetic survey and lighthouse service who have performed active duty with the navy during the present war.

HOW MONEY WILL BE PAID.

2—From the date of approval of this act by the President, officers carrying the accounts of officers and men who resign or are discharged or released from active duty will pay the same at the time the pay account is closed, provided that men given dishonorable, bad conduct or undesirable discharges will be given no gratuity. "Credit will be made on the rolls as a sundry credit charging 'pay of the navy' and payment will be made in cash. A notation of the amount of gratuity credited will be made on both the service record and discharge or orders to inactive duty.

3—Officers and men who have been relieved from active duty, discharged or disenrolled prior to the approval of the act will present their claims for gratuity, substantiated by their discharges or orders to inactive duty to the disbursing officer, Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, Navy Department, Washington, D. "In case the original discharge or orders to inactive duty are lost, it will be necessary to obtain a certified copy from the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, Washington, D. COMPARE ENLISTMENT RECORDS.

4—Upon receipt by the disbursing officer of claims filed by men no longer in active service, the requests will be compared with the enlistment records on file in the Bureau of Navigation in order to ascertain the correctness of the claims, and the disbursing officer will certify that such comparison has been made, and that according to the records the gratuity is due and remains unpaid.

5—In the event of duplication of payment by reason of failure to note payment of gratuity on enlistment record and discharge or orders to inactive duty, the officer who fails to make such notation will be held accountable.

6—No part of this gratuity will be withheld to reimburse the government for over-payment.

MAJ. HOMANS TO BE CLASS DAY MARSHAL

Major Robert Homans, '94, of Boston has been chosen chief marshal for Commencement Day at Harvard. According to custom the marshal has been selected from the class which will celebrate next June the twenty-fifth anniversary of its graduation from college.

Major Homans has only recently returned from France, where he was in service with the American Expeditionary Forces.

17,500,000 DEAD TOTAL OF WAR'S RAVAGES

London, Feb. 28.—The total number of deaths caused by the war reached the almost incomprehensible figure of 17,500,000, according to a complete summary of the world's casualties compiled by the Manchester Guardian.

This number, huge as it is, does not include many deaths attributable indirectly to the war, but includes a mortality of 4,000,000 from influenza and pneumonia due to war conditions.

The total allied losses were 5,600,000, excluding a large number of French civilian dead.

The total deaths suffered by the central powers are placed at little more than half the allied figure, or something over 2,900,000.

The British Empire and India lost 898,621 lives, including victims of air raids. The figures for other individual nations are virtually the same as previously published.

The article sets forth the following interesting facts not commonly known:

Italy lost 300,000 from disease in the war zone, or three-fifths as many as her killed in action.

It is estimated that 4,000,000 Armenians, Syrians, Greeks and Jews were massacred by the Turks.

One million Serbian civilians died through massacre, hunger or disease.

German submarines killed some 7,500 neutrals.

20,000 EAGLES FOR BONUS TO HEROES

Fraternal Order Believes Congress Should Reward Men Who Save Liberty

Delegates to the New England convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, representing nearly 20,000 members, are on record as unanimously favoring the six months' pay plan for soldiers, sailors and marines, as advocated by the Boston American.

Resolutions to this effect were adopted at the gathering held at Providence, R. I., by delegates representing the membership of this order throughout the New England States. The order is one of the most powerful fraternal organizations in the East.

RESOLUTION FAVORS BONUS.

A copy of the resolutions was forwarded to the American by Secretary J. H. Byrne of Worcester Aerie, No. 203. They read as follows:

"Whereas, thousands of our fellow citizens, and amongst them thousands of members of our order are now being mustered out of the service of our country, therefore be it

"Resolved, that we believe it is the duty of our government to provide employment for these gallant men and we further believe that the government should not discharge these men without compensating them by at least six months' pay."

Copies of this resolution have been sent to the New England Senators and Representatives in Congress.

CANADA HAS REWARDED HEROES.

How generously Canada is treating its discharged soldiers is pointed out by J. J. Murphy of Haverhill, until recently a gunner in the Canadian Field Artillery, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, and the father of two sons, who are still in service.

"I hope to see this six months' pay forthcoming," he writes. "The Canadian government is doing great work for its discharged soldiers. They are paid according to length of service. The smallest amount they get is three months' pay and at $70 per month this is $210.

"If a soldier is married the wife or other dependent receives $30 per month, making $300 in all. The gratuities run from $300 to $600."

If the Canadian government can afford to give to its discharged soldiers from $300 to $600 per month, surely the government of the United States, which is the richest government in the world, can afford to give its men six months' pay, which in the great majority of cases would amount to a little over $180.

This is not much more than will buy a complete civilian outfit for the discharged soldier, sailor or marine and provide him with enough money to keep him from want and supply him with tobacco and the small comforts that he needs until he is enabled to find work.

DIFFICULT TO SECURE WORK.

The experience of discharged service men coming to the attention of the Soldiers' Service Bureau shows that it is frequently four to six weeks before a man can find work after being discharged, and some men have been idle fully two months without prospects of a job.

Employers are adding unnecessary difficulties to the problem of unemployment by refusing to take back their former employes. The viewpoint of the employer is that in the several months to two years that the former employe has been absent to serve his country, necessary changes have been made in office methods with which it will take the former employe several weeks to master. They claim, thereore, that it is "good business" for them to retain the man in the position who has the most knowledge of it.

While this is a narrow, selfish, unpatriotic view, it is held by many employers, service men report. They declare that they were offered other jobs than the one they had, but they would not accept, believing that their services in behalf of their country entitled them to a position at least as good as they had on entering the service.

BONUS WOULD PREVENT UNREST

The employment problem is bound to be a troublesome one for several weeks longer, in the opinion of many firms who have taken back all of their returned employes, and nothing could better allay discontent and bitterness among the discharged service men than the payment of six months' wages.

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American has been established for the purpose of giving help to the soldiers and sailors of the U. S. Army and Navy. Answers to questions as to location of the various units appear every day in this column. Prominent attorneys are always ready and anxious to clear up difficulties of a legal nature. Any unemployed enlisted man will be given the help of the department toward securing a position, and the discharge of soldiers because of distress among the home folks will be facilitated.

The department is doubly efficient, as it is not operated as a question and answer column, but is working in connection with similar bureaus in Hearst's New York American, Atlanta Georgian, Chicago Herald and Examiner, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Any suggestion for broadening the scope of the bureau will be gratefully received.

LLOYD GEORGE HALTS BRITISH STRIKE

By WILLIAM J. BUTLER,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Feb. 28.—Stirred by Premier Lloyd George's ringing call for the same unity in the industrial world which won the war, thus preventing a world catastrophe affecting America as well as Europe, Britain's industrial congress took great steps toward averting a crisis.

In a motion by Arthur Henderson, backed by the Premier, the Congress, which represents nearly every industry in Britain and more than 10,000,000 workers, voted the establishment of a commission of sixty members—thirty from labor and thirty from capital—to make an inquiry:

1—Into the causes of the present unrest;

2—Into general conditions of industry;

3—Into unemployment and measures for its prevention;

4—Into methods for co-operation between capital and labor.

The government will appropriate the chairman of the committee, which will report to the Industrial Congress not later than April 5.

POSTPONES MINERS' STRIKE.

The Premier was called from the congress to the miners' conference. During his brief absence from the industrial gathering the fiery little Welshman swayed the miners' delegation and secured a point in having the national miners' strike postponed from March 15 to March 22, pending the report of the government commission's inquiry in which representatives of the miners will participate.

There is a strong reason to believe that this vote of postponement may avert the strike altogether.

Asserting the only solution of the problem is increased production, Lloyd George promised that the cost of food of the British workingman's home will have fallen by two shillings a week by the end of March and four shillings a week by the end of April.

Cheers greeted his announcement that peace preliminaries will be signed within the next few weeks, the German signature—and only that—allowing the removal of the blockade.

The Prime Minister declared he dreaded stagnation. If Britain stood still America and France would stand still, he said, and that would mean a catastrophe for the world.

PUBLIC IS PLUNDERED BY THE FISH MEN, DECLARES PROSECUTOR

BANKERS IN BIG 'PLOT'

Webber Accuses Financial Men as Being Involved in Alleged Fish Conspiracy

Charges that the president and two directors of a Boston bank were involved in the business dealings of the Bay State Fishing Company were made today by Assistant District Attorney Abraham C. Webber at the resumed hearing of the so-called "fish trust" in which thirty prominent men are defendants. The charge against them is conspiracy.

The bank officials in question will testify, Attorney Webber added.

He arraigned the company as an organization meant to "plunder the public"; compared the acts of the defendants with the crimes of issuing counterfeit money and using false weights and measures; and declared that the defendants planned their alleged conspiracy at a time when food was scarce, and the time ripe "to make a cleanup."

The combination was fatal to small dealers, Attorney Webber declared. He said:

"Little men could not succeed in the atmosphere of the Bay State Fishing Company. If the fish man cannot get his supply every day he cannot hold his trade. These defendants knew that, and could say who was to get fish for the following day's business and who was not to get it. Part of their plan also was to buy up even the producing capacity of independent schooners and shipowners.

TO PLUNDER THE PUBLIC.

"The Commonwealth claims that the Bay State Fishing Company was organized, not to capitalize the fish business, but to capitalize the right to plunder the public, that through excesses and grossly exaggerated capitalization, it was intended to hide large and excessive profits; that millions of dollars' worth of stock were to be issued fraudulently, and I say that in the fullest sense.

"This was done with the knowledge and consent of the directors. It was part of their scheme that officers of one of the national banks of this city were to be corrupted, and were corrupted. The president of a bank of this city and two of the directors voted on furnishing most of the money that made up the half million dollars that went to buy the plant of the old company.

DYER AS PROMOTOR.

"Frederick M. Dyer, president of the Bay State Fishing Company, is in reality a stock promoter. Dyer has an office in Boston and an office in New York. He came to Boston and met Burns, who is now manager of the fishing company, and as a result a meeting was called at the City Club of 20 or more dealers, and propositions for a new company were put up by Dyer with the intent to control the fish business of Boston in all that that term means.

"One of these dealers stood up and said to Dyer. 'It is crooked.' That man will testify for the Commonwealth."

Even when they had on hand more fish than they could handle, Attorney Webber declared, corporation officials went down on the fish pier and "bid in" newly arrived cargoes, thus depriving dealers outside the alleged combination from obtaining their stock in trade.

"Through the action of these defendants a very high price for fish resulted," Attorney Webber continued. "The price was raised from one and one-half cents a pound to as high as fifteen cents a pound wholesale, before ever it reached the public. During the war they made one and one-half million dollars profit, or more than three hundred per cent. No efficiency could raise any business to such vast proportions."

Arthur P. French of Reading appeared as general counsel for the Bay State Fishing Company. He stated on the stand that he was secretary of the corporation.

BRENNAN AND UNDERHILL IN CLASH

Charlestown Man Draws Threat of Punishment by Speaker Warner

Recollection, fond or otherwise, of those days when the Boston Common Council meeting more or less resembled a Kilkenny riot came to many in the gallery at the House of Representatives today when Messrs. Brennan and Underhill engaged in debate over the merits of the bill to increase the appropriation for the Pilgrim Tercentenary.

Matters grew so interesting that Speaker Warner found it necessary to use the gavel and to threaten to name Representative Brennan the next time he broke the rules. Trouble broke when Brennan objected to the appropriation, saying the money might be used to educate the more recent pilgrims.

Underhill retorted that if he had his way he would spend the money to educate the modern pilgrims and more of it to send a majority of them back whence they came in a ship like the George Washington. This remark evoked response from Brennan.

"Mr. Speaker," said the gentleman from Charlestown, "these remarks come with little grace from a man who represents the city that failed three times in three Liberty Loans."

"That's the cheapest remark I ever heard on this floor," replied Underhill to the accompaniment of the Speaker's gavel. There was a lull for a minute or two, when Brennan arose again and demanded the floor on a question of personal privilege.

In response to the speaker's request that he state his question, Brennan declared that he had been personally attacked by Representative Underhill of Somerville. Speaker Warner ruled otherwise and despite liberal use of the gavel Brennan continued, remarking that the speaker might name him if he cared too.

"The speaker names," started Speaker Warner, then he stopped and continued, "the speaker will name the gentleman the next time he breaks the rules."

By a rising vote the bill was passed 105 to 13.

COOK FED LOGAN BEANS AS FOOD FOR FIGHTING

"Happy Apple," Back From the War, Tells of His Colonel and the 101st

Doughnuts and Boston baked beans.

This was the fighting food of Colonel Edward L. Logan of the 101st Infantry, according to Sergeant Ernest Appleton of Springfield, who was Colonel Logan's cook on the other side.

"Happy Apple," as Sergeant Appleton was called among the boys, arrived a short time ago from overseas. He called to day at the army headquarters and had a long talk with Major-General Edwards.

"Don't stand for it, if any one says a word against Colonel Logan. I know him well. When you cook for a man you ought to know him. Isn't that so?" claimed the sergeant, when asked to tell something about the popular colonel.

"Why, he was just wonderful. He was the easiest man to cook for. I'd swat any one over the eye who can say a word against him.

"I tell you why. Once I was cooking, what we called after the armistice was signed, a Liberty Pot Roast. I was just about to call them into the mess, when a shrapnel knocked the devil out of the bricks and wood and some of it landed in the pot roast.

"But I didn't tell any one. It just happened that Colonel Logan ate part of that pot roast and called me to see what was in his share of it. It was part of the cap of the shrapnel.

"Colonel Logan turned it over and smiled and enjoyed eating that roast, when I told him about it, more than ever.

"He is a real man. You can't get back of that. Why I gave him doughnuts and baked beans before they went over the top. The men liked it. Colonel Logan always had room for this kind of food.

"Believe me, and I'm telling you nothing but down right truth, that Colonel Logan knew how to take care of his men. There was nothing mean in his make up."

SEIZE AND DESTROY WHISKEY ON STEAMER

Providence, Feb. 28.—Federal authorities seized thirty-five full pints and 168 quarts of whiskey during a raid upon the steamer Dorchester of the Merchants & Miners Line, shortly before sailing time. About fifty cases, each containing twelve quarts, have been cast overboard by the crew, according to the report. Joseph Horney of Whitman, Md., was arrested. He is the quartermaster. The whiskey was concealed in different parts of the vessel, and it is believed it was consigned to Norfolk, Va.

Henna Blonde Is Here; Newest (and Oldest) in Complexions

O, you Auburndines!

Yep, they're here. The girls with the titian hair.

Mrs. Wilson started the fad of hats in henna shade when she visited Boston last Monday. But did she put anything over on the Hub's progressive young women stylists? She did not. Proof?

Meet the henna blonde! Where? Not a stone's throw from the American office—wherever a galaxy of beauties shop or serve, the henna blonde will be found.

The newest thing in complexions? Also the oldest.

Presidents' wives may come and go, wearing henna-tinted hats; but the henna blonde is right in our midst. Wherever you see a rich, deep auburn coiffure, shining with brilliantine and crisply marceled, there is the henna blonde.

They've been doing it in Egypt for centuries. No doubt Cleopatra followed the mode. Not only that, in the East they henna-dyed their finger-tips, nails and eyelids. Miss Boston confines the precious stain to her locks. "Flower of Paradise" they call it in Egypt. Mohammed (susceptible old soul), summed up the charm of henna when he called it "Chief of the flowers of this world and the next."

SENATORS OPPOSE NASHUA POLICE BILL

Nashua, N. H., Feb. 28.—Senators William F. Sullivan and George L. Sadler today voiced their opposition to the Cote police bill, which was unanimously passed in the House of Representatives at Concord yesterday. The Cote police bill calls for the appointment of one commissioner in place of three now serving. The Senate will convene Thursday to discuss the bill and a number of the largest business men here will appear in opposition. Should the bill pass the Senate, it is rumored that former Commissioner George E. Anderson, one of the wealthiest men of this city, will be offered the position.

Young Hero of War Seeks Work to Get an Education

He went into service for Uncle Sam without waiting to be drafted. Now the war which he helped to win is over, and he wants an education. Who will help him get it?

He has never learned to read or write, and he wants to go to school. In return he will cheerfully work for his board and lodging. And he knows how to work. Although only twenty, he has had experience. He was brought up on a farm in the Southwest by adopted parents and is also, as he says, "right there on housework." He had a job as indoor boy before he went into Uncle Sam's service, but that was interrupted by the war. Now he wants to have another try at getting an education.

No charity for this boy—just a chance to earn his way.

"I'd like to get farm work, because I like it and am used to it," he told the American. "But I would just as soon do housework. I'd be willing to go to night school. But please be sure and say that what I want chiefly is a chance to go to some kind of a school and learn to read and write."

HERO PRIVATE IS DECORATED ON COMMON

McArdle Given Distinguished Service Cross for Bravery in France

The Distinguished Service Cross was awarded for the third time today on Boston Common with appropriate ceremonies.

The recipient, Private H. McArdle of No. 20 Havre street, East Boston, while a member of the 103rd Ambulance Company, 101st Infantry, Sanitary Train, near Belleau Wood, France, showed extraordinary heroism on July 18, 1918, in looking after a wounded soldier.

The soldier fell in a wheat field within range of the enemy's fire. Private McArdle in attending to him was wounded twice with machine gun bullets and stayed by until the soldier was safely taken to a dressing station.

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, in addressing the young man after pinning the medal upon him, commended him for his brave action in service.

Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff, read the citation. The troops, composed of four companies from the 26th Infantry, were in charge of Brigadier-General John W. Ruckman, commanding the North Atlantic Coast Artillery district.

The music was furnished by a Coast Artillery band from Fort Warren.

A number of friends of the young man were present from his neighborhood in East Boston.

Young McArdle was discharged from service at Camp Devens February 6, 1919.

Y. D. COMING IN APRIL—LATEST ORDER

Pershing Cables War Department Schedule of Departure of Troops

The Yankee Division, New England troops, will come home in April. This was stated in a message from General Pershing to the War Department, made public today.

According to the order, the Y. D. or 26th will be the first division to be sent home in April. The order reads:

"Divisions now in the American Expeditionary Forces, except those having regular army designations, will be returned to the United States in the order of the arrival of their respective division headquarters in France. Exception to this rule will be made only when availability of rail and sea transportation, location relative to port, or the condition of military stores makes such exception necessary."

The various divisions will return as follows:

March—27th, 30th, 85th, 37 and 91st.

April—26th, 77th, 82nd, 35th and 42nd.

May—32nd, 28th, 33rd, 89th, 78th.

Yankee Division Will Be Quartered in the Boston Armories When It Arrives

The different units of the Yankee Division will be quartered in the armories of this city. Mechanics Building will be reserved for several units and it is barely possible that the building formerly occupied by the Bacon store on Washington street will be used.

The different auxiliaries of the units of this division have been asked to co-operate in preparing the warm reception for the men. The placing of the men in different armories has already been considered. Captain H. D. Comerais is ready to take definite action about completing some of the arrangements as soon as he hears from Mayor Peters.

NEWTON MAN MARTYR AS BIG GUN BURST

Five days after he went into action Private James W. Smith of the 149th Field Artillery was killed by a bursting gun. The manner in which their son went to his death was learned for the first time by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Smith of No. 117 Pearl street, Newton, in a letter from Captain John C. Redington, his commanding officer. He was drafted in June and sailed for France during the latter part of July. He leaves besides his parents, a brother, Harold R., and a sister, Laura B., both of Newton.

TWO SETS OF TWIN CALVES IN SIX WEEKS

Two sets of twins, six weeks apart. How is that for a record? Such is the case at Charles Whipple's farm at Hamilton. They are bovine twins. Six weeks ago Mrs. Moolie of the Whipple herd gave birth to twin calves. Now Mrs. Bossy of the same heard has just been delivered of twin calves. In view of the high price of beef the excess arrivals are particularly welcome. Mothers and twins are all doing well.

Indiana, Pa., Feb. 28.—The will of a soldier written in the trenches in France just before he went over the top to his death was declared valid by the Probate Court here, although it was not witnessed. STRIKE PICKET JAILED FOR ASSAULT

Lawrence Man Charged With Kicking Dinner Pail From Hands of Aged Woman

By JAMES F. GAVIN.

Lawrence, Feb. 28.—Antone Ostapchuk, a strike picket, was sentenced to serve two months in jail by Judge Mahoney for assaulting Mrs. Margaret Hoye, an aged woman, on Chestnut street, today. The police allege that Ostapchuk struck Mrs. Hoye and kicked a dinner pail from her hands, believing that she was on her way to work in one of the mills. John Cuccu, arraigend on a charge of assault and battery on Mary O'Connell, was held until March 7, following testimony offered that he was not responsible for his act.

Rev. Abraham J. Muste, freed on $500 bail on a charge of disturbing the peace, denied today that plans for a parade of the strikers were going through despite their failure to secure a permit. The mass meeting scheduled for tomorrow to take place at the corner of Short and Chestnut streets will be held, he declared.

Muste said that there would be a conference between the strike committee and Police Commissioner Peter Carr late today, following which there might be important announcements in connection with the meeting.

About 100 strikers and strike sympathizers bombarded the police with lumps of coal from a nearby coal yard at the corner of Essex and Jackson street. This occurred at the time of the arrest of one of the strikers.

A protest against alleged police methods, endorsed at a recent meeting of Italian business men here, has been sent to the Department of Labor, Governor Coolidge, the General Court of Massachusetts and the City Council of Lawrence.

'NIGHTGOWN' STRIKE BY THE SUFFRAGISTS IS BROKEN

But Sheriff Kelliher said yesterday that the Charles street jail could not be used as a setting for any "press agent stunt." He announced also that when their fines were paid the "suffs" would be put out of the jail "nightie" strike or no "nightie" strike. Whether Miss Hill preferred to reach the sidewalk in her "nightie" or in more conventional street garb, he declared, was entirely "up to her."

Mrs. Clara Hill of Brookline, one of the sixteen suffragists who were sentenced to serve eight days in the Charles Street Jail, was released upon paying her fine. Unlike those before her, she went out at her own accord. She explained, as she paid over $3.50 to Sheriff Kelliher:

"I am very sorry that family needs demand my presence at home," she said. "I wanted to carry my part through with the rest. But I simply find it impossible."

CALLS TREATMENT SPLENDID.

Then turning to Sheriff Kelliher, she said: "I wish to thank you very much for the courteous treatment you have given us. It is indeed splendid."

She wanted it understood that so far as she was concerned, the best of treatment was accorded by the personnel of the prison and offered her highest praise. She bid the sheriff good-bye and made her way to the outer door, where she was greeted by a blinding flash set off by camera men who wanted her picture. After that she went to the headquarters of the suffragists at No. 9 Beacon street.

"The people misunderstand us," she said. "They cannot see the sense in our going to jail and call it a silly thing. Let me tell you it is worth while doing such a hard thing for such a worthy cause."

Mrs. Hill is the eighth to be released since the sixteen were sent to the jail. Miss Josephine Collins of Framingham had her fine paid by her brother. She proved very stubborn and had to be carried out by three guards.

She was placed in her brother's machine and driven home amid her protests. Those that remain are in fear of some one stepping forth and paying the amount of their fines, thereby spoiling their plan of staying in jail until the time is up. Nevertheless, they are determined to stay as long as they possibly can. The action of Mrs. Hill did not seem to affect them, as they realize the urgency of her case.

MISS PAUL GOES TO CAPITAL.

At the headquarters it was reported by Mrs. Agnes Morey that Miss Paul had left Boston for Washington. She will remain there for a day or so, then proceed to New York, where she will organize a monster protest meeting for March 4. This is the day that President Wilson makes his speech before sailing for Europe the second time.

She appeared very optimistic and predicted favorable results. Dr. Grace E. Cross of South Boston will be the representative of this section at the meeting.

A telegram was sent to President Wilson, signed by the sixteen who were sent to jail, protesting, and outlining what they wanted to convey to him during his recent visit here. The telegram is as follows:

"The President, White House,
"Washington, D. C.
"Mr. President:

"You said to the United States Senate on September 30: 'We shall not only be distrusted, but we shall deserve to be distrusted if we do not enfranchise women.'

"You alone can avoid the distrust by securing the one vote needed to pass the suffrage amendment before March 4.

"This is the message we tried to deliver to you Monday. We repeat it to you from the Charles Street Jail.

"Miss Katherine Morey, Miss Betty Gram, Mrs. H. F. Russian, Miss Josephine Collins, Mrs. Rose Roewer, Miss Martha Foley, Miss Betty Connolly, Miss Eleanor Calnan, Miss Lou Daniels, Miss Camilla Whitcomb, Miss Ruth Small, Miss Berry Pottier, Mrs. Jessica Henderson, Miss Elsie Hill, Mrs. Lois W. Shaw, Mrs. George Hill." Hill."

WIRE TO "PRISON SPECIAL."

A telegram was also sent to the "Prison Special" which reached San Francisco today, asking for a stopover in Boston on March 9, the day on which a mass meeting will be conducted at the Wilbur Theatre and honors bestowed upon those who have gone to jail.

Among the speakers will be Miss Inez Milholland, Miss Sue White, Miss Lucy Burns, Mrs. John Rogers, Mrs. Abby Scott Baker and Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer.

Lambs' Club Gives Up Its Home at Charlestown, N.H.

Charlestown, N. H., Feb. 28.—The "Lambs' Pasture" exists no more. The Lambs' Club exists only in the minds of the inhabitants of this town, as the homestead of the late Charles H. Hoyt, the playwright, has passed into the hands of the town.

According to the will of the playwright, who died in 1900, his farm and estate here was turned over to this organization of New York theatrical stars, to be used as a resting place of invalid and disabled stars.

Since the death of the host, Mr. Hoyt, the place lost its drawing power and became a white elephant on the hands of the organization. The expense of keeping the place became a burden. If sold the income will be expended on the streets of the town, according to the will.

Tea to Replace Rum as National Drink After July 1

New York, Feb. 28.—"C'mon, Suam, le's have another I'll nip o' tea. Ish sho shtimulatin' an' delightful I can't resist."

It's true. The tea jag is coming. That is to say, tea merchants hope to make tea the national drink when alcohol has been relegated to the history books.

A committee of the Tea Association of the United States is at work on ambitious plans today to substitute the tea cup for the whiskey glass along about July 1.

TOWN STIRRED AT FAILURE TO GET SLAYER

East Jaffrey Seeks Outside Aid in Hunt for Murderer of Dean

East Jaffrey, N. H., Feb. 28.—Angered by the apparent indifference of the town authorities toward finding the murderer of William K. Dean, a number of prominent citizens today started this petition which by noon had over two hundred signatures.

"We, the undersigned citizens of Jaffrey, hereby respectfully request the proper Federal and State authorities, to conduct a searching and complete judicial investigation into the crime which resulted in the death of William K. Dean, at Jaffrey, August 13, 1918, to the end that if possible the guilty parties may be found and any unjust suspicions be allayed."

A stormy session of the Board of Trade followed the appearance of the petition, and an equally stormy town meeting is looked for.

GRANITE MEN THREATEN LOCKOUT

Cutters and Employers in Bitter Wage Dispute That May Involve Whole Industry

Granite workers at plants throughout the United States are facing a threatened shutdown, according to the verdict handed down after a conference between the International Monumental Granite Producers' Association and the Granite Cutters' Union.

The wage scale decided upon yesterday is as follows: From March 1, 1919, to August 1, 1919, 70 cents per hour or $5.60 per day. From August 1, 1919, to April 1, 1920, 75 cents per hour or $6 per day. From April 1, 1920, to April 1, 1921, 80 cents per hour or $6.40 per day. From April 1, 1921, to April 1, 1922, 85 cents per hour or $6.80 per day.

Three branches of the Granite Cutters' Union in Quincy will meet tomorrow afternoon to ratify this agreement. The granite plants of that city have been closed since December 1, 1918, when the workers declared a holiday and agreed to remain out until the manufacturers agreed to pay them the minimum wage of $6 a day.

The situation was brought to a head last week at the convention of the International Monumental Granite Producers' Association in New York, and it was then voted to close every plant in the United States unless the Quincy workers return to their places by March 1, 1919. This vote brought the matter to the executive council, and it is hoped to avert a shutdown in the industry.

Just a little while ago almost nobody would look at a cotton blouse. That is, in Boston.
Not more than a few weeks ago the vesteed voile blouse sketched came into the Filene Blouse Shop. And almost over night cotton blouses became fashionable.
This blouse has been hard to keep in stock, but a new shipment has come in sufficent quantity to advertise. The blouses are a fine tissue voile—in light colors, with white stripes.

K. OF C. APPEALS TO BAKER ON WAR FUND

Wish to Distribute More Than Ten Per Cent. of Money to Soldiers

Washington, Feb. 28.—A delegation of Knights of Columbus will appeal to Secretary of War Baker today or tomorrow for a revision of the recommendation of the committee of eleven by which 10 per cent. of the funds raised in the United States war workers' campaign may be given free to soldiers.

With the signing of the armistice it was decided that revised budgets should be submitted for the guidance of the War Department in the adoption of a policy in the expenditure of the $205,000,000 pledged. The Y. M. C. A. leaders suggested that 10 per cent. should be given soldiers who need financial assistance.

DIFFICULTIES OF PROBLEM.

The K. of C. workers believe that a greater proportion could be used to advantage in this work. It was pointed out by some social experts that the distribution of money is a difficult matter, that in many instances it has been found that money is squandered and that often it appeared more wise to provide the soldiers with necessities.

The Knights of Columbus feel that gifts or loans of money are essential to many men and that 10 per cent. would allow too small a sum for the needs of the men about to return to civil life.

The committee of eleven, after a discussion of the points involved voted to recommend the suggestion of the Y. M. C. A. The K. of C. representatives, with the consent of the committee, then suggested that they place their arguments before Secretary Baker, who must finally approve the program since the work is carried out under the jurisdiction of the War Department.

SEEK BEST METHOD.

Dr. F. P. Keppel, Third Assistant Secretary of War, who will attend the conference between Mr. Baker and the K. of C. delegates, and who has direct supervision for the War Department of the work of relief organization, said:

"The difference is one solely of what method will best aid our men. The utmost friendliness prevails, for it is an honest difference of opinion. I am sure every one is confident that Secretary Baker will do his utmost to reach a just and wise decision."

GILLETT PICKED BY REPUBLICANS FOR SPEAKER

Bay State Congressman Says He Has Reached Goal of His Ambition

Washington, Feb. 28.—Representative Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts was nominated for the Speaker of the House in the Sixty-sixth Congress at a Republican caucus. He defeated Representative James R. Mann of Illinois and Philip Campbell of Kansas on the first ballot.

The official vote was Gillett 138, Mann 69, Campbell 13. Four votes were cast for Representative Esch of Wisconsin and one for Mondell of Wyoming. On motion of Representative Mann, the nomination of Representative Gillett was later made by acclamation after the test vote had been taken.

Nomination is equivalent to election as the Republicans have majority of forty-five over the Democrats in the next House.

REACHES GOAL OF AMBITION.

Representative Gillett, when apprised of his nomination, made the following statement:

"I have reached the goal of my ambition—a happiness, which I suppose comes to few men. I feel the deepest gratitude to my generous supporters, but I have no tinge of hard feeling against anyone. My ambition now will be to establish harmonious co-operation among all Republicans that we may cope successfully with the prodigious problems of the coming session."

Representative Gillett made a speech of acceptance and was given an ovation.

Joseph Rogers of Pennsylvania was named for sergeant-at-arms.

Bert Kennedy of Michigan was nominated for doorkeeper.

A slate for the committee on committees as proposed by Representative Winslow of Massachusetts, was voted down by the caucus, and upon motion of Representative Mann it was voted that the committee on committees should consist of one man from each Republican State delegation who will vote his delegation in the selection of the members of the committee of new Congress.

TO NAME STEERING COMMITTEE.

This committee will also name a steering committee of five members, a "whip," who will appoint an assistant, and a floor leader who will be ex-officio member of the steering committee.

This change in procedure is generally conceded to mean that Representative Longworth and Representative Fess are balked in their effort to have the time-honored seniority rule cast aside in naming the chairmen of the committees. If this be true, it means that Representative Fordney will head the Ways and Means Committee and Representative Good the Appropriations Committee, the two most powerful committees of the House.

Frederick Huntington Gillett, whose residence is Springfield, Mass., was born at Westfield on October 16, 1851. He was graduated from Amherst College in the class of 1874 and from the Harvard Law School three years later. In the same year he was admitted to the bar at Springfield. In 1879 he was assistant Attorney-General of Massachusetts, serving for three years. He was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1889 and 1891 and was elected to the Fifty-third Congress of the United States in 1892. He has been re-elected to all succeeding Congresses, being returned in the last election by a majority of 9,800.

U. S. NAVY IN 22 SUCCESSFUL ATTACKS ON GERMAN SUBMARINES

NEARLY 400 AMERICAN SHIPS IN WAR GAME OVERSEAS

This is the second of a series of articles of the activities of the more important branches of the Navy, taken from official records at Navy Headquarters, and presenting, in many instances, the news for the first time. The American Battleship Division, of which little has appeared in the news dispatches, was out constantly in the North Sea searching for German convoy raiders. Numerous engagements were had with the enemy submarines, and on one occasion the battleship New York, flagship of the division, narrowly escaped destruction. Details of this action were obtained by the International News Service at the time from the fleet, then off Scotland, but could not be used because of censorship restricions. The Navy Headquarters now makes the details public for the first time. The other articles will appear in the near future.

By DELT EDWARDS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, Feb. 18 (by Mail).—When hostilities ceased the United States Navy had approximately 81,000 officers and men serving in Europe on 373 vessels. This represents about 15 per cent. of the total naval personnel, which is 31,186 officers and 506,996 men.

The total casualties were: Officers 79, men 950; total 1,029 killed; prisoners of war, 6 officers, 15 men; total 21. The vessels actually present in European waters upon the cessation of hostilities were located as follows:

Edinburgh, Grand Fleet, 5 battleships. Queenstown, 24 destroyers, 30 submarine chasers, 3 tugs, 2 tenders; total 59. Berehaven, 3 battleships, 7 submarines, 1 tender, 1 tug, 1 oiler; total 13. Brest, 38 destroyers, 9 mine sweepers, 1 gunboat, 16 yachts, 3 tenders, 9 tugs, 1 station ship, 4 steam barges, 4 barges, total 85. Cardiff, 55 colliers, 1 refrigerator hulk, 1 tender; total 57. Gibraltar, 2 cruisers, 4 gunboats, 5 coast guard cutters, 9 yachts, 1 tender, 6 destroyers, 18 chasers; total 45. Genoa, 2 tugs. Azores, 2 yachts, 1 tender, 1 oiler, 2 mine sweepers, 5 submarines, 1 tug; total 12. Murmansk, 1 cruiser. Mine Force, 1 tender, 1 oiler, 9 mine layers, 2 mine sweepers; total 13. Southampton, 4 transports. Plymouth, 1 tender, 2 destroyers, 36 chasers; total 39. Corfu, 1 tender, 36 submarine chasers; total 37. Liverpool, 1 oiler.

This makes a total of 373 vessels actually in European waters. They steamed, according to approximate figures, about 626,000 miles, distributed as follows: Destroyers 275,000, miscellaneous patrol craft 120,000, mine sweepers 100,000, mine layers 10,000, battleships and submarines 90,000, submarine chasers 121,000.

After a long discussion of the number of submarines sunk by United States vessels in the war—reports varying from "hundreds of encounters" and "scores of submarines sunk"—the United States Navy headquarters officially announces:

256 ATTACKS REPORTED.

"United States vessels have been officially accredited with twenty-two successful attacks on enemy submarines." The degree of success in these attacks varies from "slightly damaged" to "known sunk."

Misleading statements have been printed that the vessels had hundreds of encounters. There were 256 reports to the headquarters of attacks. But, after investigation, it was found that in 183 cases only were submarines even in the vicinity. The final revised list follows:

Trippe, Lieutenant-Commander Gifften, July 9, 1917, "possibly slightly damaged;" Wadsworth, Lieutenant-Commander G. W. Kenyon, July 12, 1917, "possibly slightly damaged." Jenkins, Lieutenant-Commander H. D. Cook, July 17, 1917, "possibly slightly daaged;" Wadsworth, Lieutenant-Commander J. K. Taussig, July 21, 1917, "possibly slightly damaged;" Wilkes, Lieutenant-Commander J. C. Fremont, July 26, 1917, "possibly slightly damaged." Benham, Commander J. R. Gay, July 20, 1917, "possibly slightly damaged;" Parker, Commander W. Brown, August 3, 1917, "probably seriously damaged;" Jacob Jones, Lieutenant D. Bagley, September 5, 1917, "possibly slightly damaged;" McDougal, Commander W. T. Conn, September 9, 1917, "possibly slightly damaged." Davis, commander W. V. Tomb, September 21, 1917, "possibly slightly damaged." Fanning, Lieutenant A. S. Carpenter, and Nicholson, Commander F. D. Berrien, November 17, 1917, "known sunk." Nona, Lieutenant-Commander L. R. Leahy, with Wakiva, Lieutenant-Commander G. E. Davis, and Kanawha, Lieutenant-Commander H. D. Cook, November 28, 1917, "probably seriously damaged;" Allen, Lieutenant-Commander H. D. Cook, February 2, 1918, "possibly slightly damaged." Porter, Lieutenant-Commander W. H. Lee, February 28, 1918, "probably seriously damaged;" Patterson, Lieutenant S. S. Cook, May 19, 1918, "possibly slightly damaged;" Christabel, Lieutenant-Commander M. B. McComb, May 21, 1918, "submarine interned at Santander;" Sterett, Lieutenant-Commander A. S. Farquhar, June 1, 1918, "possibly slightly damaged." Lydonia, Lieutenant-Commander R. P. McCullough, May 8, 1918, "known sunk;" sub-chasers Corfu, Base 25, Ensign G. J. Lavy, U. S. N. R. F.: 179, Ensign E. Hazard, U. S. N. R. F.: 338, Ensign J. M. Beverly, U. S. N. R. F., July 10, 1918, "possibly slightly damaged;" sub-chasers Plymouth base, 84, Ensign E. F. Williams, U. S. N. R. F.: 85, Ensign A. B. Baker, U. S. N. R. F.: 86, Ensign G. H. Lane, U. S. N. R. F., July 10, 1918, "possibly slightly damaged." and the Tucker, Lieutenant-Commander W. H. Lassing, August 8, 1918, "possibly sunk."

CHARTS WERE CHECKED.

Owing to the difficulty in determining whether a vessel was actually in contact with a submarine, many claims of the inexperienced men could not be substantiated. To give every man the full credit where any doubt existed, the charts of the submarines' paths were carefully compared and checked against false credits.

Field Artillery Has No Fear of "13"

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 28.—Thirteen has no terrors for the men of the 346th Field Artillery, recently arriving here from overseas service. Here's how they figure it:

The three figures, 3, 4 and 6, composing the number of the regiment, added give thirteen. The regiment sailed for Europe on July 13, reached Liverpool thirteen days later, and there were thirteen ships in the convoy. Returning home the voyage required thirteen days, and their vessel passed the Statue of Liberty at 3:13 o'clock.

After arriving in America it was discovered that thirteen men had mustaches. A committee waited on the thirteen and ordered all "maps cleared for action." Theorder was complied with.

On their trip to Seattle there were thirteen cars in the first section of the train.

America's Big Naval Guns Were Big Help in Windup of the War

London, Feb. 18 (by Mail).—America's great naval long-range gun dropped a shell in Longuyon at 10:59 o'clock on the morning of November 11, armistice day—one minute before the cessation of hostilities.

Experts of the various allied armies say these great guns helped to "get the windup" of the Germans as much as anything else. Germany's long-range guns that had been firing on Paris had been reduced to piles of debris. They were only eight and ten-inch. Her tremendous weapon, called Old Lugenboom, hidden in the forest eight miles below Ostend and used for a year and a half to shell Dunkirk, had been captured, practically intact. Lugenboom threw a fifteen-inch shell approximately thirty miles. It was the largest weapon on the Western front. It took two years to set it up.

America's naval guns threw a fourteen-inch shell. They were now the biggest at work. Five of them had been brought to France and set up from July 26 to September 26. They had a range of 156,000 feet—approximately thirty-one miles. They threw a fourteen-inch shell.

They were mounted on travelling railroad forts. Each was self-sustaining with a unit of eight cars and locomotives. The cars carried ammunition, supplies and quarters for the gun crews.

The first gun turned loose its first blast September 6, firing from Rethondes into Tergnier. It fired one round. Eight days were then taken in trimming it for more effective work. Then it dropped twenty-two rounds into Loisy-Drenz from the same berth. Then another gun was set up at Soissons, firing 199 rounds into Laon between September 28 and October 12. The first gun was then moved to Jussy, whence it dropped its big shells into Mortiers between October 12 to 21. Thirty-five rounds were fired.

With everything going well, the third, fourth and fifth guns were brought up. They were set up at Thierville. This triple battery sent fifty rounds into Mengiennes between October 24 and November 9. It hurled 147 rounds into Longuyon between October 29 and November 11. The last shell went over from Gun No. 4 and landed in Longuyon at 10:59 o'clock on the morning of the day the hostilities ceased.

Gun No. 2, which had advanced from Rethondes to Jussy, was now at Charny firing into Montmedy. From October 29 to November 2 it dropped 156 shells in the city. Gun No. 3, now moved up from Thierville to Charny, sent 172 shells into Montmedy in the eight days from November 4 to 11 inclusive, keeping up a continual drubbing of the city. From Nuisement sur Coole Gun No. 1 fired seven experimental shells.

Altogether 789 shells were fired from these powerful weapons.

These guns, while requiring tremendous quantities of steel, were built from the 25 per cent. of surplus which is alloted when the battleships are built. They were designed by the Bureau of Ordnance and built by the Baltimore Locomotive Works, which also constructed the cars and locomotives.

Illinois Schools to Use Only English Is Proposed

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 28.—A movement has been launched to bar all but English language from being taught in the public schools of Illinois.

Samuel Insull, chairman of the State Council of Defence, is back of the movement and is preparing a recommendation urging the General Assembly to pass a law making it obligatory in every grade school in the State to employ only the English language.

"A foreign-born family in America begins with two—the wife and husband"—said Insull. "We may find it difficult always to make good Americans of these because they lack our language. But the children of foreign-born—why should we make them poor Americans by allowing them to acquire their educations in a foreign tongue?"

According to present plans the bill will apply to parochial schools as well as public.

$15,000 VERDICT FOR CUTTER IN LOVE SUIT

Awarded Verdict Against Dr. Almon Cooper for Alienating Former Wife's Affections

A jury in the Second Session of the Superior Court before Judge Lawton awarded Charles T. Cutter $15,000 in his $25,000 suit against Dr. Almon Cooper of Brookline for alienating the affections of the former wife of the plaintiff, Myra E. Cutter, now the wife of Dr. Cooper.

The trial lasted for several days, and the plaintiff offered evidence tending to show that Dr. Cooper first made the acquaintance of Mrs. Cutter early in 1900 when he was called to treat her professionally at the house then occupied by the Cutters in Malden. That acquaintance, it was alleged, developed into intimacy, and a few years later Mrs. Cutter left her husband and took up her residence in Brookline in a house owned by Dr. Cooper.

Cutter obtained a divorce from his wife, and Dr. Cooper also was given a decree against his wife on the ground of desertion. In 1913 Mrs. Cutter and Dr. Cooper were married.

The defendant denied all the accusations of Cutter, and claimed that the suit was not brought within six years after the acts complained of had taken place.

$17 BANK CLERK INDICTED FOR $27,140 THEFT

Employe of Manufacturers' National Bank of Cambridge Held by Grand Jury

William Roniker, the $17.30 a week teller of the Manufacturers' National Bank of Cambridge, who is charged with embezzling $27,140, has been indicted by the Federal grand jury.

The former teller, who is twenty-seven years old, has been in jail since his arrest, having been unable to furnish bail of $20,000. Roniker, upon being brought to the Federal building at the time of his arrest, is alleged to have said to one of the Federal officers: "How do you expect a clerk to support a wife and two children on $17.30 a week?"

Besides sixteen true bills the grand jury reported seven secret indictments in their final report to Judge Morton. The jury reported no bill against Mrs. Maria Madeiros of Eastondale, who was arrested on the charge of having aided soldiers to desert from Camp Devens.

INDICTED IN DEVENS CASE.

Indictments were found against four civilians employed at Camp Devens who were arrested on the charge of receiving coal stolen from the cantonment. The men indicted are Eugene Cronin of Heath street, Roxbury; Clarence K. Reed and Harry Simpson, both of Ayer, and Ernest L. Tupper of Shirley. The men were arrested in connection with the court-martial of Captain Harry J. Harris.

Dr. John P. Russell, sixty-five, of Carew street, Springfield, arrested charged with the violation of the Harrison narcotic act, was indicted, as was Miss Elizabeth Connolly of Avondale avenue, West Springfield, who is held on the same charge.

It is alleged that the aged physician furnished 10,000 grains of "dope" to Miss Connolly, who is alleged to have sold morphine and cocaine to persons in Springfield and West Springfield.

CHARGED WITH WHITE SLAVERY.

Mathew Mandella, twenty-two, of Worcester was indicted on a charge of violating the Mann white slave act. The defendant is charged with unlawfully transporting Mary Logan, sixteen, from Worcester to Providence and from Providence to Peabody. Mandella is serving a sentence imposed by the Salem court.

Mrs. S. Steves of Warren street, Roxbury, was indicted as was William L. Robinson, a sailor, both of whom are charged with conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with an allotment. This is the first case of its kind which has been brought to the attention of the Federal authorities.

Mrs. Steves is alleged to have represented herself as being the wife of Robinson. Federal officials claim that the government was defrauded out of about $400 by the alleged conspiracy.

Homer H. Leep of Griggs avenue, Brooklyn, was indicted on a charge of unlawfully wearing the uniform of a lieutenant in the navy with intent to defraud Miss Louise Noonan, a clerk in a bank in this city. Miss Noonan, it is said, cashed a check for $60 for Leep.

HOLD POSTOFFICE CLERK.

Frank E. Nowell, a former clerk in the Pittsfield postoffice, was indicted on the charge of having embezzled money from the mails. It was alleged he took two registered letters containing money orders sent to the Pittsfield postmaster. The amount of money involved is said to be $2,622.

Other indictments were returned and charges were against Lawrence E. Robertson, using mails to defraud; Angello Lucca and Michael Riordan, larceny of property in interstate shipment. William J. Smith, formerly sergeant at Camp Devens, breaking and entering postoffice; Luigi Salvucci, mailing lottery tickets, and Joseph Blefeld, using mails in scheme to defraud.

AVERAGE INTELLIGENCE EQUAL TO CHILD OF 13

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 28.—The intelligence of the average citizen is equal to that of a thirteen-year-old child. At least so claimed Earl Barnes, educator and lecturer, in an address here before the Kindergarten Teachers' Association.

"The claim is based upon government records," asserted Barnes, "after tests had been taken of the man in the army and navy. The figures also state that one out of every twelve men can't read or write. I consider these tests of the average intelligence of men to be one of the best steps in education taken for many years."

OVER 272 MILLION TONS OF COAL RECORD OUTPUT

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 28.—Officials of the State Department of Mines estimated that during the year 1918 the mines of Pennsylvania produced 272,873,714 net tons of coal. Of this total there were 90,614,334 tons of anthracite and 172,859,380 tons of bituminous. The production in 1917 totalled 271,619,710 net tons. During 1918 the anthracite mines employed 141,868 persons and the bituminous 172,600.

There were 1,044 fatal accidents in the coal fields during 1918, 640 of which occurred in the anthracite district.

'SURE, I'M IRISH,' DECLARES NEW TENOR

John O'Sullivan a Sinn Feiner and Favors Proposed Republic

New York, Feb. 28.—John O'Sullivan, the Chicago opera tenor, is in a mad fury against a certain fellow musician who informed a newspaper in this city that he was not an Irishman at all, but a Frenchman.

"His name is Jean Sullivan," declared this individual. "He never saw Ireland, and he is as typically French as anybody in Paris. He is trading on remote Irish ancestry to curry favor in America, but he doesn't deserve it any more than any other French artist in the country."

O'Sullivan, when interviewed, was pale with fury. His eyes rolled and he spoke with a rich brogue which only a marvelous actor could affect.

"I was born in Cork. I went to the priests' school there and spent the first twelve years of my life in that city. Then I was sent to Paris to live with an aunt named Mrs. O'Brien, and she sent me to school there and in Brittany. To be sure my later years were spent in France, but by the same token every Irishman now living in America is no Irishman because he doesn't happen to be at home.

"When I was singing in the French provinces I was known as Jean Sullivan. That's true enough. Jean is the French for John, and the French didn't know what to make of the O' on my name so I temporarily dropped it. When I came to America where it was understood I resumed my own name. But any spalpeen who says that a man who grew up to the age of twelve in Ireland, who knows her history backward, who loves her sons and hates her enemies, isn't Irish, well just let me meet him. "And the tenor waved a heavy cane menacingly through the air.

"And furthermore," added O'Sullivan, "I am a Sinn Feiner. I believe in a free Ireland with no British affiliations whatsoever. I have every faith that the new Irish republic will endure and that America will compel Great Britain to recognize her independence."

SELLS FAST AT 5 CENTS A POUND

at the corner of Milford street and Shawmut avenue, South End, the corner of Broadway and Dorchester street, South Boston, on Poplar street in Roslindale and at No. 709 Main street, Cambridge.

Other markets will be announced by the American shortly. A market in your neighborhood may be announced at any time. Watch the American for such an announcement.

Long before the scheduled opening hour, throngs of people besieged the four fish markets opened today by the Boston American. Not only did they buy the fish for today, but also for their Sunday dinners. Men and women, young and old, children with barely sufficient strength to carry five pounds of fish, came for their share, fearing lest the opportunity would be taken away soon.

At the South End branch people told of coming from as far as Roxbury Crossing with market baskets. And so the demand continues. The news is spreading from housewife to housewife, and as soon as they hear of it, they head for the nearest branch.

ASK CO-OPERATION OF PUBLIC.

For the success of the American's experiment the cooperation of the public is necessary. It must be understood that fish is not a product which can be sold only once a week, but it should find favor once a day with the public.

The fish being sold today from the American's stores is frozen fish. It was examined fully before its sale by Inspector Murphy of the Boston Board of Health.

Before it is cooked it should be thouroughly thawed. Directions for doing this, as well as the Massachusetts Food Administration's best advice on cooking the fish, is being given away with the fish in the form of printed pamphlets.

NO PROFIT MADE.

It should be understood at once that the American is not making any profit on the sale of this fish. The object is to show that fish can be put on the local market at the extremely low price of five cents without a loss. This means that local retailers, who are now charging from twelve to fifteen cents a pound for fish, could sell it at from seven to eight cents a pound. In other words, the public is being charged at the rate of over 100 per cent profit by local retailers. The quickest way to cure this condition is to eat more fish.

The more fish you eat the cheaper you can get it.

If the public will buy fish every day in the week instead of once a week it can be sold cheap. The American is trying to prove that the public will do this, and also that fish can be sold on a narrow margin. With this end in view it is offering fish at less than cost.

If the present American stores are not located in your vicinity it will pay you to get in touch with the stores that are open.

OFFER FREE USE OF STORES.

Since the American announced this plan a number of public-minded persons have called up and offered the American the free use of stores to give the people 5-cent fish. As speedily as possible the American is arranging such stores in every section.

Stores are planned in Providence, Pawtucket, New Haven, Brockton, Lawrence, Lowell, Worcester, and other places.

Around Boston such stores will be opened in Charlestown, Somerville, Chelsea, East Boston, Brighton, and Brookline Village. If by any chance any community should be left out, or feel that it is not being properly served, an invitation is extended to write a request to the Fish Editor, Boston American, and plans will be made to take in the section in question.

The prompt response of dealers, offering the American use of their stores in this effort to reduce the cost of living, showed that even some of the most unscrupulous dealers realized that their reign is at an end.

The answer—the permanent answer to the food question is—eat more fish. Eat it three, four, five times a week. Get it for breakfast and luncheon, as well as for dinner.

Your Old Friend, JIM REAP, the Trust Buster

"Fish Trust Buster" of Scranton, Pa., and his remarkable advertisement showing how he sells far below Boston prices fresh fish caught right off Bay State coast, after paying big "express freight" and refrigerator car charges.

Pittsburgh and Boston Retail Fish Prices

Here are the prices at which fish sells in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Boston, as compared with the Boston American price of five cents.

Shipping fish from Boston to Pittsburgh entails heavy express freight charges, while the Boston Fish Pier is at the very door of the Boston retail market. Despite this extra transportation charge the Boston-shipped fish are sold much cheaper in Pittsburgh than in the regular Boston retail markets.

	Pittsburgh	Boston
Steak cod	12 cents	20 to 25 cents
Haddock	12 cents	12 to 15 cents
Boston bluefish	..	15 cents
Whiting	8⅛ cents	15 cents
Herring	8⅛ cents	15 cents
Flounders	15 cents	None
Smelts	10-15 cents	20-25 cents
Finnan Haddie	15 cents	15 cents

The manner in which Boston fish dealers "squeeze" Greater Boston consumers in the matter of prices for fish was shown again today by way of far-off Scranton, Pa.

It appears that the Boston dealers are able to ship fish from Boston to Scranton in carload lots for a price that enables the Scranton retailer to undersell the Boston retail fish markets.

In other words the fish are shipped from Boston and although heavy transportation charges for express freight are paid the fish can be sold cheaper in Scranton than in Boston.

The Scranton retail prices, as advertised in the Scranton Republican of February 20 by the consignee, emphasize the truth of what the Boston American is urging in its present campaign to bring down fish prices—that the Boston fish "bosses" can put fish on the local market at much lower prices than they are now charging and still make a reasonable profit.

"TRUST BUSTER'S" PRICES.

The Scranton consignee, James Reap, or "Jim" Reap, as he calls himself in business, advertises himself as "The Trust Buster."

His advertisement and his scale of prices raise the immediate question:

"If a Scranton 'Trust Buster' is able to sell Boston-shipped fish in Scranton at such low prices, why can't the fish be sold at least as cheaply in Boston?"

Reap's advertisement announces that "Car No. 11,406, Boston & Maine, left Boston Fish Pier Tuesday morning (February 19) by express direct" to Reap's store on Lackawanna avenue in Scranton. The advertisement adds:

"All fresh caught fish. None carried over in any barns or stables around the city and sold to the public as fresh fish. Investigate for yourself."

Reap's advertised scale of his Scranton retail prices for Boston fish will interest the Boston consumer, as follows:

	Cents Per Lb.

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Get a small bottle of Danderine at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications will destroy every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.—Advertisement.

EVEN CROSS, SICK CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

Look at tongue! If feverish, bilious, constipated, take no chances.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.—Advertisement.

RULES FOR LENT ISSUED BY CARDINAL

All Saturdays Days of Abstinence; Fast Ends at Noon on Holy Saturday

All the seven Saturdays in Lent will be days of abstinence for Catholics. The Lenten regulations will be read at all the masses in all the churches of the diocese on Sunday.

The official communication to the pastors and priests will be printed in this week's Pilot, the official organ. The letter is from Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, and the regulations calling for all Saturdays in Lent to be observed as days of abstinence from flesh meat is according to the new canon law.

INCLUDE THOSE 21 TO 59.

It will apply all over the world as well as to this diocese. Thus there will be seven Saturdays regarded as days of abstinence, although the inhibition against flesh meat is not effective after noonday on Holy Saturday. Neither is that day afternoon to be observed as a fast day, although, as usual, all the other days of Lent will be fast days for all Catholics between the ages of twenty-one and fifty-nine, although many are excused because of sickness, physical condition or disability.

The other days of abstinence will be Ash Wednesday and the Wednesday of Holy Week named in the regulation circular as Ember Wednesday.

Lent will begin next Wednesday, March 5, Ash Wednesday. Lent ends officially on Easter Sunday, April 20, but no regulations will be in effect after noon on the Saturday preceding.

The circular on Lenten regulations from the cardinal follows:

"1—All the days of Lent, except Sunday, are fast days. The Lenten fast and abstinence end at noon on Holy Saturday.

"2—All between the ages of twenty-one and fifty-nine are obliged to fast, except the sick and convalescent; women in delicate health and condition; those to whom fasting would cause grave injury to health, or would produce such illness or exhaustion as would interfere with their daily duties, and those whose occupations are of a very laborious and exhausting nature. Those who doubt whether they are excused or not should consult their confessor.

"3. Those obliged to fast are allowed but one full meal, either at noon or in the evening, and a light supper or lunch. Their breakfast should not be a meal, but should consist simply of a cup of tea, coffee, chocolate or similar beverage, with a small portion of bread.

DAYS OF ABSTINENCE.

"4. The only days of abstinence during Lent are Ash Wednesday, Ember Wednesday and all Fridays and Saturdays. On other week days those obliged to fast may eat meat once a day at their principal meal, but those not obliged to fast may eat meat at any of their meals.

"By special privilege of the Holy See, working people and their families are obliged to abstain from meat only on Ash Wednesday, Fridays and Holy Saturday forenoon. On all other days those of the family who are obliged to fast may eat meat at their principal meal; those not obliged to fast may eat meat at any of their meals.

"6—The use of meat and fish at the same meal is no longer forbidden.

"7—Those who are dispensed from fasting or abstinence during Lent should practice self-denial in some other way. Abstinence from all intoxicating drinks in honor of the sacred thirst of our Lord is especially recommended.

"8—The usual Lenten devotions will be provided in all the churches of the diocese, and the faithful should endeavor by earnest prayer, heartfelt contrition and the worthy receiving of the sacraments to profit by the special graces of the holy season.

"9—The time for complying with the precept of paschal communion extends, as heretofore, from the first Sunday of Lent to Trinity Sunday.

"WILLIAM CARDINAL O'CONNELL,
"Archbishop of Boston."

ELECTION CASE MAY BE PROBED BY JURY

Whether or not the Federal Grand Jury will take up the cases of the non-appearing witnesses at the Tague-Fitzgerald hearing is in doubt. United States Attorney Thomas J. Boynton was non-committal relative to what course he will pursue in the matter, although he did "advise everybody to obey the subpoenas."

The Federal authorities, it is understood, believe that the statute passed by Congress which governs such cases has not got the "teeth," in that it provides for indictment and punishment as a misdemeanor for such offence, the exact fine and punishment that may be imposed not being specified.

WOMAN HANDLES BIG CRANE AND THEN GOES BOWLING

Mrs. Florence Leard of No. 139 Bowdoin street, Dorchester, twenty-two years old, and employed as a woman war worker at the Watertown Arsenal. After a hard day's work Mrs. Leard finds her greatest recreation in bowling a "ten-string" match for a tournament trophy. She handles one of the giant cranes in the big gun carriage shop.

"Bowling a "ten-string" match for a tournament trophy is somewhat of a strenuous evening for any woman.

But it is nothing but a mild recreation for Mrs. Florence Leard of No. 139 Bowdoin street, Dorchester. Mrs. Leard, one of the first women war workers at the Watertown Arsenal, handles a big ten-ton crane all day at the arsenal and then bowls a dozen strings or so evenings just to keep in physical trim.

Mrs. Leard entered the "crane" school instituted at the Watertown Arsenal last October. It takes six weeks to finish the course, but Mrs. Leard, with characteristic energy, completed her training in four weeks' time and was assigned to the task of handling one of the mighty cranes in the big gun carriage shop.

Mrs. Leard is not a militant suffragette, but she feels she can hold her own with any male worker. Picking up a big gun carriage weighing several tons and loading it on a car is child's play when you have learned the knack, she says. It beats housework and is much more interesting.

There is nothing in picking up a big gun truck to cause fatigue, the reporter learned at Mrs. Leard's home. On the contrary, he found her husband spending a quiet evening at home while the pretty war-worker was engaged in bowling.

Harvard Periodicals in Word Battle Over Memorial

The Harvard Crimson and the Harvard Illustrated differ on what form a war memorial at that university should take.

The Illustrated is making a campaign to interest graduates in the memorial gymnasium, and the project has been spoken favorably of by Dean Greenough, William P. Garcelon, Percy Haughton and many other prominent Harvard men. Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, director of the Harvard gymnasium, also approves.

The Crimson bases its objection on the comparatively brief usefulness of a gymnasium. Graduate opinion is expressed somewhat by Kenneth Murdock, an assistant dean at Harvard, who believes that the best form of memorial, and a most practical one, would be a foundation of money to be devoted to the University's general uses.

Brookline Opposes Proposed Tax by State

When Secretary Walter D. Allen of the Brookline Board of Trade learned that the proposed taxation bill was ready for the committee in the legislature, he summoned the members of the Executive Committee of the board.

Only a few minutes were occupied in explaining the purpose of the meeting and President Gardner A. Whitney and Secretary Allen were authorized to engage counsel to appear before the committee at Beacon hill and oppose the measure. Attorney Charles W. Bowley was engaged and he presented the disapproval of the Board of Trade to the legislators.

The proposed taxation bill, if it became a law, would be a hard blow to Brookline, it having been estimated on the basis of last year's income tax, that more than $270,000 would be lost to Brookline and necessarily would cause an increase in the tax rate.

LODGE IN SENATE SPEECH CRITICISES LEAGUE OF NATIONS

WOULD BENEFIT EUROPEAN POWERS CHIEFLY, HE SAYS

their most-cherished policy," he observed.

"PAUSE AND CONSIDER."

"We are asked to give up, in part, our sovereignty and our independence, and to subject our will to the will of other nations, if there is a majority against our desires. We are asked, therefore, in a large and important degree to substitute internationalism for nationalism and an international state for pure Americanism. Certainly such things as these deserve reflection, discussion and earnest thought.

"We are invited to move away from George Washington to the other end of the line, at which stands the sinister figure of Trotzky, the champion of internationalism!" he exclaimed. "Lincoln's government of the people for the people and by the people we are asked to substitute in the United States on many vital points for government of, for and by other people. Pause and consider well before you take this fateful step."

The time may have arrived for substituting new and doubtful schemes of internationalism for the traditional policies of the United States, Lodge said, but it would not be undertaken without the gravest consideration. He constantly referred to the instrument read in Paris, not as the constitution of the League of Nations, but as a "draft" subject to and requiring amendment.

FOR WORLD PEACE.

"I will follow any man and vote for any measure which in my honest opinion will make for the maintenance of the world's peace," he said.

"I will follow no man and vote for no measure which, however well intentioned, seems in my best judgment to lead to dissensions rather than harmony among the nations or to the injury, peril or injustice to my country."

The veteran Republican leader reiterated his plea that peace with Germany be made immediately and not await upon the efforts "to realize unattainable dreams."

By the terms of the peace he wanted Germany so weakened by indemnities and territorial adjustments as to forever remove the danger of war from this quarter. This, he believed, would be the best guarantee of lasting peace the Paris conference could give.

"In the first place," he said, attacking the construction of the proposed constitution, "the terms of the league—the agreement which we make—must be so plain and so explicit that no man can misunderstand them. We must, so far as it can be done by human ingenuity, have every agreement we make so stated that it will not give rise to different interpretations and to consequent argument. Misunderstandings as to terms are not a good foundation for a treaty to promote peace."

NATIONS MAY QUARREL.

In the Paris draft, Lodge asserted, there is hardly a clause about the interpretation of which men do not already differ.

"As it stands there is serious danger that the very nations signing it will quarrel about the meaning of the various articles within a year," he said.

There is no provision in the constitution, Senator Lodge emphasized, for the withdrawal of any nation. It is to be assumed that any nation withdrawing would lay itself open to attack by the forces of the league. Constantly, Lodge differed with the President in the interpretations he gave of the league covenant's provisions at the White House dinner.

"It is worse than idle, it is not honest," he said, "to evade or deny the fact that by the draft the United States would abandon the policy of Washington and the Monroe Doctrine."

"Perhaps the time has come when the policies of Washington should be laid aside," he admitted, "but if we are to cast them aside I think at least it should be done with a sense of gratitude to the great man who formulated them."

Lodge flatly asserted that the extension of the Monroe Doctrine to the world meant the doctrine's destruction. If its destruction is not intended, he said, its continuation could be assured in three lines in the league constitution. He suggested also that the league covenant be amended to eliminate interference with questions of immigration or emigration and internal policies.

THE QUESTION OF FORCE.

"On the question of the use of force," he said, "we should not proceed in the dark. If those who support the league decline to make such simple statements as these, it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that they are seeking to do by indirection what they are not willing to do directly."

Through the creation of a League of Nations, Lodge said, the United States must build no bridge across the chasm separating American freedom and order from Russian anarchy and destruction.

Germany Trying to Snatch From Peace Table Victory It Was Unable to Gain in War

By DELTUS M. EDWARDS.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Feb. 28.—Germany is now preparing to appear at the Peace Conference with a well-worked-out scheme of politico-social reconstruction according to persons in close touch with diplomatic circles here.

Commercially the German is struggling just as hard as he did in the days of the war. Factories have been started and have produced complete lines of new goods since the armistice was signed.

Indications are that the German is trying to snatch from the peace table the victory he was unable to gain by over-riding sacred agreements he made with the nations which were helping him most before the war. And back of the scenes German propagandists are sowing the seed of economic and social [illegible].

CALLS GERMANY DECEITFUL.

Sir Arthur Yapp, national secretary of the British Y. M. C. A., just back from Germany, sounds this warning: "One of the biggest dangers that we have to face in the occupied territory of Germany is the extraordinary friendliness of the German people which I regard as a deliberate new offensive on the part of the Germans."

With characteristic subtleness the Germans are revelling in the trickling stream of industrial discontent in allied countries. They are trying to form a tangible impulse behind all the strikes in England, France, Spain and the United States. They are endeavoring to have themselves and others believe that the sympathetic strike in Seattle was a terrible thing for America; that Bolshevism is rampant in America, England and France.

"It is natural to suppose these parallel phenomena in all the industrial countries in Europe have already found, or are seeking, underground communication with each other," says the Berliner Tageblatt. "Perhaps we can consequently hope that the imperialistic trees of our enemies will not grow to the sky."

URGES RETURN TO MONARCHY.

And further in line with this trend of German thought, Prince Henry of Prussia declares that Germany must re-establish the monarchy and her economical life on a pre-war basis. He advocates the formation of a well-disciplined land and sea force "in the old style," under the old dynasty and leadership of Prussia. He boasts that events since the armistice was signed in November show distinctly that a return to monarchy is a first condition in Germany becoming strong and healthy again.

Delegates Cheer as Clemenceau Walks in Paris, Feb. 28.—A gasp of amazement went up in the peace conference chamber at the Quai D'Orsay when the door opened and in walked, quite erect and unassisted, though very pale, Premier Clemenceau.

The delegates jumped from their chairs and crowded around the "Tiger," heartily congratulating him on his recovery. He stayed a little while, taking active part in the deliberations, then made his adieus, walking out again unassisted, politely but firmly declining the many attempts to aid him.

3,500 MEN AT DEVENS WITNESS SHRINERS' BOUTS

Camp Devens, Ayer, Feb. 28.—Thirty-five hundred soldiers, including 100 wounded brought down in motors from the Base Hospital, thoroughly enjoyed the boxing and wrestling offered by the Y. M. C. A. in the auditorium and staged with the help of the Boston Shriners.

Sieborlix of B Company, 36th Infantry, drew in three rounds with Private Forbes of D Company, 36th Infantry. Corporal Hudson won in four rounds from Corporal Wrenn of the Depot Brigade. Private Abe Pearl, Medical Corps, won from Sergeant Cunningham of K Company, 36th Infantry, in four rounds. Private Smart defeated Sergeant Dowd in three rounds.

Private Joe Rocco of the Medical Corps defeated Frank Morey of Boston in six rounds. Coogan of South Boston and Thomas of Boston drew in six rounds. Sergeant Jung of L Company, 36th Infantry, over Johnny Sullivan of South Boston, in six rounds.

The wrestling bout went fifteen minutes without a fall and was awarded to Arthur Davis of the Boston Y. M. C. U. over Frank Hackenschmidt, Boston.

WILL TELL OF WAR WORK BY SALVATION ARMY

Mrs. (Brigadier) Mary Shepperd will tell of the Salvation Army work in France, at the Midwinter Conference of the Lend-a-Hand Clubs, at the First Universalist Church, Church Court, in Charlestown, tomorrow. The second speaker of the afternoon session will be Rev. William F. English, Jr., of Lowell, who will tell of "The Needs of Armenia and Syria." Miss Annie F. Brown, superintendent of the society, will give a quarterly report, and Mrs. Thomas Allen, representing the Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross, will tell the clubs how they may entertain the wounded and shell-shocked soldiers now in the hospitals.

ITALY ON BRINK OF WAR WITH SLAVS

Fighting Rumored as Result of Counter Claims on Dalmatian Coast

compelled to leave the city immediately.

Confronted by such a serious offence the Italian government, which has not yet recognized Jugo-Slovakia, ordered the closing of the frontier as it did not wish to have immediate recourse to military occupation, which was agreed to by the terms of the armistice. At the same time the Italian government took necessary measures to intensify the revictualling of Jugo-Slovakia.

"It is worth noting that since February 12 a train bearing released Italian subjects was attacked at the Laibach station by soldiers in Serbian uniforms while it was returning to Italy. The soldiers tore down and burned Italian flags that had decorate the train."

The dispute has been unofficially discussed by the peace conference during the week. The Italians urged the conference to take such action as will check the alleged aggression of the Serbians.

MAY USE ECONOMIC PRESSURE.

The root of the dispute is Italy's demands for Fiume and the Dalmatian coast which, Serbia contends, would deprive Jugo-Slavakia of all useful outlets to the Adriatic.

The feeling prevails here that the conference will not tolerate any further inflammatory action and may anticipate the actual formation of a League of Nations and take measures to calm the dispute.

One effective course suggested is the holding up of supplies and finances. It is believed that the economic weapon would prove most effective.

The Serbians allege that Italy has about 3,000,000 men under arms. In this same connection Italy has begun to inquire why France has stationed practically her entire fleet in the Adriatic.

Allegation and counter-allegation is being made by the respective sides. The Italians declare that many of the soldiers under arms in Jugo-Slovakia are Austrians and that they are taking commands from German officers.

CONSIDER GREEK CLAIMS.

The following communique was given out by the peace conference concerning Greece's territorial claims:

"The committee appointed to consider Greek territorial claims met Thursday, February 27, at 4 p. m. Representatives of the provisional Albanian government, of the former provisional government in northern Epirus and from Thrace were all heard."

The question of the western frontier of Germany will come before the big five next week with Premier Clemenceau sitting with the French delegation.

The French report on this big problem has not yet been made and Andre Tardieu, member of the French delegation, refused to discuss the possibility of a buffer state being formed on the western bank of the Rhine. M. Tardieu's only comment was:

"Neither Belgium nor France can again allow the left bank of the Rhine to serve as the future offensive base for Germany as has been the case in the past fifty years. We do not want annexation; we want only safety."

MAY DEMAND SARRE VALLEY.

It is believed that France will claim the entire Sarre Valley, whose mineral wealth will greatly compensate her for economic losses through the wanton devastation wrought by the Germans in northern France.

It is not positive that the peace preliminaries will be ready for signatures by March 8, but it is believed fairly certain that military, naval, territorial and financial terms will be completed by March 15.

The only outstanding question then will be that of responsibility for the war. A report on this matter will be forthcoming, it is believed, before the beginning of April.

The British treasury has advanced $62,500,000 to the British section of the supreme council of supply and relief, of which Herbert C. Hoover is administrator. This is in addition to two cargoes of wheat valued at $2,000,000 supplied by England to Rumania.

The plan of the Zionists to make Palestine an independent Jewish state is receiving the support of France and it is believed that all the powers will support it.

BRITAIN AS MANDATORY.

The Zionists propose that Great Britain be given mandatory powers by the League of Nations to protect Palestine.

There is deep satisfaction among the delegates on the complete recovery of Premier Clemenceau and it is felt that the presence of the "Tiger" among the conferrers will greatly speed up the work of the conference.

Italy's Support of League Pledged by Orlando

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 28.—The whole-hearted support of Italy to the proposed League of Nations is pledged with "fervid expression and deep conviction," in a cablegram received today by President Wilson from Premier Orlando of Italy.

CONFERENCE IS AWAKE TO NEED OF ACTION

But Is Still in Doubt as to Policy of Biggest Problems, Says Dillon

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Special Cable to the Boston American and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

(Copyright in the United States and Canada by the Philadelphia Ledger Company. Copyright in Europe by the London Daily Telegraph.)

Paris, Feb. 28.—The peace conference is awakening to the necessity of moving forward and the danger of further drifting but is still uncertain what sails to hoist on the voyage eastward.

The entente leaders once proclaimed the impossibility of establishing a durable peace of a solid league of nations so long as Russia continued a prey to anarchy, yet their concerted effort to rescue the great Slav people from the bog of chaos constituted an almost irremediable blunder, hardening the Slav nation against entente influences. The invitation to the Bolshevists, whom the allied leaders had stigmatized as brigands and assassins, destroyed the prestige of these powers, leaving the problem more acute.

Since then the resourcefulness of politicians has devised no fresh expedient, yet time presses and action, effective or feeble, must be shortly taken.

What lines will it take?

Lacking official information, I am prepared to offer the following conjectural answer, foreknowledge of which may prove helpful to all concerned, and I am disposed to believe the allied governments will start from the axiom that the Czarist empire founded by Peter the Great has collapsed, leaving the ethnic fragments scattered by a centrifugal force, which implies dealing with the heterogenous segments, not as integral parts of Russia, but as ethnic oddments calling for measures graduated according to the qualifications of each for self government. That, I fancy, is the formula still unexpressed which will inspire the allies in their next attempt to deal with the Russian problem.

Consequently, the problem is no longer single but manifold. The plenipotentiaries have received petitions from the numerous nationalities which were formerly incorporated in the Czardom proclaiming their determination to live apart from Russia and govern themselves.

Among these who thus refuse to throw in their lot with the Russian people and who invoke the right of self-determination are the Lithuanians, Letts, Esthonians, Baltic Germans, Ukrainians, Poles, Finns, Armenians, Tartars, Bashkeers, Georgians, Lezghions, Turkamains, and other peoples whose claim to separation from Russia can hardly be reasonable denied.

Buckwheat cakes—with sausage! Um-m!

Make this wonderful old-time breakfast the easy Aunt Jemima way!

Buckwheat cakes—with sausage! Oh, how that combination does tempt the appetite on a wintry February morning!

Perhaps you've been forgetting how "powerful good" buckwheat cakes really are! Give yourself a treat tomorrow—see what pleasant memories the first taste brings back! Memories of all sorts of healthy outdoor things—hickory smoke curling upward in thin blue wisps—skating on the old pond, coasting down the big hill into drifts of snow—

It's the simplest thing in the world to make buckwheat cakes—if you make them the easy Aunt Jemima way!

All you need is a package of Aunt Jemima Buckwheat Flour—you add nothing but water. Everything necessary to make the best buckwheat cakes you've ever tasted is already mixed in the flour.

Order a package of Aunt Jemima Buckwheat (in the yellow package) from your grocer and give your husband this wonderful old-time breakfast tomorrow! Aunt Jemima Mills Company, St. Joseph, Missouri.

There's still a splendid variety to choose from in this extraordinary

Mark-Down Sale

We use the word "extraordinary" not because it's high-sounding, but because it's the only word that exactly fits this Good Clothes Event. It IS an extraordinary Sale from every point of view—size of stock, quality of merchandise, variety of styles and money-saving opportunities presented.

It's extraordinary also because of the fact that while the heavy and steady selling has greatly reduced the size of the stock, it has had but little effect on the variety offered. Our stock was so well selected and so well balanced that it sells evenly—not merely in spots.

So you'll not find here the usual end-of-the-season offering of unwanted leftovers, but a clean and well-assorted stock, affording a good fit for practically any figure and any fancy at an actual saving of real money that will prove welcome to even the best-filled pocketbooks.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

"I[illegible] about Neal and Evvy[illegible]" I asked.

"No," he said curtly. "It's about me—and only about any one else incidentally. I thought you were the sort of woman who might stand by a man who called to you for help. I see I was wrong. Sorry. Please don't think I meant anything for Jim to take offense at [illegible] when I asked you to meet me."

An Appointment Made

"Wait a minute. I'm taking my father to the [illegible] train. Then I'm going to [illegible] an errand or two. I [illegible] meet you any [illegible] after 4, Mr. [illegible]. But I can't ask you [illegible] Jim's home."

"Very well, Mrs. Harrison." Pat Dalton's voice broke strangely. "Shall we say the Cinsarge at 4? [illegible] people don't tea there [illegible] and we can have a quiet hour or two."

"I'll be there."

When I hung up the receiver and turned, Father Andrew had gone into the other room. [illegible] must have expected that it was part of the [illegible] fashioned courtesy [illegible] my father?

Quickly I decided against this. He had just told me that I must learn to stand on my own two feet and not to lean on him. He had [illegible] to ask [illegible] advice.

Besides, Father Andrew had Neal to worry about. I wasn't going to send him off worrying and puzzling over me. And besides, I had to confess it to myself, I wasn't at all sure that my daddy would approve of my going to tea with any man but my own Jim. But in spite of all I knew [illegible] was quite "proper" to keep my engagement, and felt I almost owed it to Jim to do so, for I was doing it for Virginia. But what would Virginia say if she knew?

CHAPTER LXXXII

WHEN I arrived at the Cinsarge restaurant and found Pat Dalton waiting [illegible] foyer I discovered that we had the place almost to ourselves.

Handsome Pat laughed.

"Every one comes to this little restaurant for dinner, but the world wants jazz bands to [illegible] put you wise to a wonderful place to come, Mrs. Harrison, after the honeymoon glamour wears off."

"It won't wear off," I began in [illegible] recent sermon on fact that Father Andrew had delivered to me—"I'm pretty sure that I'm at least [illegible] and I know my boy is pure gold."

"Hold me responsible for [illegible] a little alloy, Mrs. Harrison," laughed Pat [illegible].

"I came to you because I honestly thought you needed help. Do you?" I asked stiffly.

"I need it badly," he began simply, then laughed in his reckless fashion—"and I'm needing a cup of tea [illegible]."

But when I [illegible] Pat [illegible] drinking [illegible] tea.

"You shouldn't [illegible]," I began.

[illegible] he shook his finger at himself.

"Bad boy Pat—all the ladies lecture you—especially all the Harrison ladies." Then his face hardened, and he went on in an ugly, reckless tone:

"Mrs. Jimmie—you can never be [illegible]"

[illegible]

"I thought [illegible] about yourself," I interrupted.

"I did. But first there's this to [illegible]"

"[illegible] I'm [illegible]" I interrupted with an uneasy laugh that masked my struggle for composure.

"Well, I was pretty close at hand when she snared him [illegible] what love [illegible] and she tried to [illegible] But if I knew [illegible] to get even [illegible] like a cad [illegible] that little [illegible] can do to save [illegible] a too [illegible]"

"[illegible]" I said. "I appreciate [illegible] you're weak [illegible]"

[illegible] made me wonder if Virginia's [illegible] had [illegible] Mason and part in Virginia's estrangement from Pat [illegible] Jim from Evvy and saved [illegible]

Pat Dalton's [illegible] of a woman.

"Mrs. Jimmie, I [illegible] about Evvy."

"I can guess that," I [illegible] ing for [illegible] and warping the threads of [illegible] and some of the knots and [illegible]

"I want to know if [illegible] friendly enough to see me [illegible] and then [illegible] I always [illegible] I like to see a bit of [illegible]"

"I've never heard [illegible] say a word against [illegible] Mr. Dalton. But do [illegible]

To Be Continued

Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water

Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried, some days headachy, dull and unstrung, some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning before breakfast a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, [illegible] days and [illegible] nights have become real [illegible] morning inside-bathers. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.—Advertisement.

MARKET HAS A FEW STRONG SPOTS

United Cigar Stores Sells at Its Highest Record Price

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks ruled weak in New York in the early afternoon, although the market had a few strong spots. They were found among shipping and industrial issues. United Cigar Stores sold at its record highest price after midday. Previously American Hide & Leather preferred sold at a high record figure. Issues to sell at their highest for this year included Hide & Leather common, Central Leather and American Locomotive.

Leather issues weakened during the morning but rallied later. Rubbers failed to recover. Specialties continued to hold attention, but were in sufficient supply to cause a reaction. After a recessional at the start, the trend was decidedly downward for awhile, and bears encountered little opposition near the end of the first hour. Afterwards the tone was firmer, but in most instances recoveries were partial only. At midday selling pressure was resumed. By afternoon the market was steadier.

PROFIT TAKING GENERAL.

The disposition to realize profits was general. It was manifested throughout the list. A number of issues slumped during the forenoon. General Motors, at its lowest, was off nearly five points, Mexican Petroleum more than two, Steel Foundries two, Kelly-Springfield four and a number of others a point or more. Among shipping stocks, American International Corporation was the strongest feature, advancing more than five points by afternoon.

MARKET WEAKENED SOON.

The price trend was indefinite at the opening, gains and losses being about evenly divided and trading of moderate volume. The latter increased within a few minutes and broadened when selling pressure spread. Prices began to recede and within fifteen minutes declines were the rule. There was not much overnight demand for stocks, and early buying was confined to a few specialties like American Hide and Leather preferred, which sold at its record highest price on the initial transaction. This was attributed to the report that a syndicate had been formed to take over Dutch holdings of this issue. Leathers and alcohols were a strong group, while motors and rubbers were irregular. Coppers and rails were inactive and had a downward trend. Kelly-Springfield opened a point lower. There was less activity on the part of pool operators. Apparently professional traders thought a reaction due. For several days there has been more inclination to sell short.

COMMODITY PRICES A FACTOR.

High prices for basis materials is having more influence upon the stock market. Production costs are keeping them up, and the chief item of expense is labor. With the cost of the necessities of life so much above normal, manufacturers are alive to the inexpediency of reducing wages at present. On the other hand, consumers will not stock up at present prices. They are sure they must have a big drop. This explains the government desire to readjust commodity prices to a degree that will create demand and start an industrial revival. Manufacturers as a rule doubt the efficacy of the Department of Commerce scheme. They think that the situation should be left to adjust itself. Reports that the labor surplus is increasing are causing concern at Washington. In business circles the opinion is that corporation earnings are going to greatly decrease. This is a bearish influence upon security valuations.

TOMORROW LAST DAY TO FILE STATE TAX

Tomorrow is the last day in which to file your State income tax return. The time for filing expires March 1. The State income tax collector's office at No. 40 Court street will keep open until 5 p. m. on Saturday for the accommodation of belated taxpayers.

After the gong rings at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, all Massachusetts residents whose business income during 1918 was more than $2,000 or who received more than $5 in income from stocks, bonds, interest, annuities, or other so-called "intangibles" and who failed to file a return as required by law, will be subject to a fine of $5 a day until such return is made.

While State income tax returns must be filed by tomorrow night, the taxes disclosed by such returns are not due and payable until the individual who files a return receives his State income tax bill from the collector. All State income taxes must be paid on or before October 1.

As a matter of fact, however, thousands of taxpayers prefer to pay their assessment when making returns. The tax collector's office is open to receive payments. No extension of time in the filing of State income tax returns is permitted this year.

The federal rate of income tax is 6 per cent. on the first $4,000 of net taxable income and 12 per cent. on the balance of net taxable income in excess of $4,000. A graduated surtax, beginning at 1 per cent., applies to all federal incomes in excess of $5,000, including "receipts."

After Canadian Co.

It is reported both from New York and Montreal that the American Car & Foundry Company is negotiating for control of the National Steel Car Company, Ltd., of Canada, which has for authorized stock issues $3,000,000 7 per cent cumulative preferred of which $1,500,000 is outstanding, and $3,000,000 common, of which $2,000,000 is outstanding.

FRANCE TO BUY BIG TONNAGE OF COPPER?

Boston Broker Hears John D. Ryan Is About to Effect Sale

In regard to the red metal market, a local financial publication prints the following: "A Boston broker is in receipt of New York information to the effect that John D. Ryan, chairman of the board of directors of the Anaconda Copper Company and president of the United Metals Selling Company, is on the eve of closing a big sale of American copper to the French government."

There has been no change in the copper metal situation, but there is hope there will be favorable developments at the meeting of producers and Federal representatives to be held in New York on Monday next, when it is expected an arrangement will be made to take surplus metal off the government's hands. A local financial publication published the following yesterday:

Metal is being offered by small dealers as low as 15 cents a pound. Large interests are asking 15½ cents. Small dealers have so little copper that their prices is inconsequential, except as a disturbing factor in the market. Consumers are showing little interest. Recent buying has been of a hand-to-mouth character.

Somebody who is described as "The best posted copper market man in the Michigan district," is quoted as saying: "The situation is worse than we suspect. We can expect no European business of any quantity for a year and mighty little United States business for at least six months to come. There is no hope for any railway construction in this country as long as the government owns the railways. That, under former conditions, promised a good outlet for copper. There is no chance for a resumption of a copper demand from Germany until permanent peace is established and German manufacturing business resumes. That may not be for a couple of years. Copper sales are now being made at 15 cents. Copper is going lower instead of higher within the next two months."

The metal situation is reflected by dividend cutting by copper companies. Reductions have been made since the beginning of the year by Quincy, Calumet and Arizona, Wolverine, Greene Cananea and Copper Range, while Cerro de Pasco omitted an extra disbursement.

URGES GOVERNMENT TO KEEP BONDS AT PAR

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 28.—At a conference of bankers under the auspices of the "Association of State Banks of the State of New York," President McDougal said in part concerning government bond issues:

"Many business houses are telling officers of their banks they have taken all the bonds they intend to take, that future issues must be taken by banks. Unless the government should issue bonds that will not fall below par, the banks cannot safely load themselves with government securities. A bank safely can invest in bonds which it knows it could sell without loss on the drop of the hat a much greater amount than it would dare invest in bonds that could not readily be disposed of.

"The banks safely could absorb two or three times $5,000,000,000 in government bonds, providing every bank knew it could realize, without loss or delay, on such bonds as it might become necessary to sell. It is for the best interests of the government to pay the market price for money, insuring fullest possible support and co-operation from the banks.

"They should not be crippled by being compelled to take large quantities of unmarketable securities. Unless the banks are kept in liquid and sound condition they cannot adequately take care of business and commerce of the country and assist in work of reconstruction which faces them.

"The present system of arbitrary allotment under pressure amongst banks of government securities pro rata is entirely unsound."

New York, Feb. 28.—The issuance of additional March notices weakened that month at the opening of the cotton market this morning 34 points and the entire list started rather easy, 3 to 34 points down. At the end of the first fifteen minutes the market was again unsettled and about 15 points under last night's close, reflecting Southern selling.

Opening prices were: March, 22.60; May, 21.80; July, 21.00; Aug., 20.65; Oct., 20.03; Dec., 19.85; Jan., 19.75.

Its Record Copper Output

The output of 700,000 pounds of copper in January by Arizona Commercial was the largest production by this company for any month in its history. But the company was not striving for a record, and the large output was achieved because of a continuation of rich ore on its lower levels.

LAUNCH VICTORY WAR LOAN BY APRIL 21

Campaign Not Abandoned, Says Hallowell, Who Urges Co-operation on Sales

N. Penrose Hallowell, executive chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, who was in Washington three days last week discussing Liberty Loan matters with the Treasury Department, makes the following statement:

"It is important to correct immediately the growing impression that the Victory Liberty loan campaign is to be abandoned and that the government will finance its needs by means of short-term notes to be placed among the banks. There is no truth in such a rumor.

"Secretary Glass has officially announced that the campaign will be launched not later than April 21 and has called on all Liberty Loan organizations to hold together and use their utmost endeavor to distribute the new securities as widely as possible among investors.

"As far as New England is concerned this is enough. The same organization which has successfully operated in four Liberty Loans will be ready and pulling at the leash by April 21, and the coming campaign will be carried on with the utmost activity.

"The problem of the Treasury has been to find an attractive form of security to offer the public. The considerable discount at which the Second, Third and Fourth Liberty Loan long-term bonds are selling (due entirely to the enormous volume which it has been necessary to sell in a short space of time) would make it extremely difficult to sell another long-term issue at par unless the rate was made comparatively high.

"By establishing not over 4¼ per cent. rate on previous issues the Treasury accomplished the remarkable and most economical piece of financing that the world has ever seen."

OPPOSE STABILIZATION BY STEEL PRICE CUTTING

Regarding Secretary of Commerce Redfield's proposal to stabilize steel prices by getting them to a lower plane, the Iron Age says the producers do not think favorably of the scheme.

"It is more than a matter of price that is holding back business," it says. "Buying of copper in the face of repeated cuts has been negligible. The industry believes readjustment should be allowed to work itself out in a natural way. Slow though the necessary liquidation of war labor wage scales must be, what is regarded as the step likely to give quickest results is a relinquishing of government control of food products and a reduction of living costs beginning in the kitchen."

VERMONT FLIER HOME WITH FRENCH CROSS

New York, Feb. 28.—After twenty-one months' service with the U. S. and French air forces, Lieutenant H. E. Stickney of Ludlow, Vt., nephew of former Governor W. W. Stickney of Vermont, returned here on the Caserta with a French war cross, awarded for bringing down a two-seated German airplane in the Champagne sector.

Star Acts and Jazz Music at Lively Press Club Time

In the long history of the Boston Press Club the biggest and liveliest "time" occurred this morning in the wee small hours, for the members of the four attractions playing the Shubert Theatres, the U. S. Navy Jazz Band and other celebrities of the footlights and the navy met the literary folk, lawyers and statesmen who compose the club.

The party began about midnight with a simple but bounteous supper. Dancing and specialties by the visiting theatrical luminaries made time pass very rapidly.

Among the principal stage folk who participated in the jollification were McIntyre and Heath, Leo Carrillo, Grace Valentine of "Lombardi, Ltd.," and the other principals of that company, Vera Michelena and the head performers of "Turn to the Right," and Walter Catlett and Marjorie Gateson and the Cameron Sisters from "Little Simplicity."

The chorus girls and the newspaper men jazzed to the music of the navy and the hilarity was at its height long after the last night cars had departed for the suburbs.

EX-SENATOR EDMUNDS OF VERMONT DEAD

Acquired Reputation as a Statesman and Twice Candidate for President

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 28.—Former United States Senator George F. Edmunds of Vermont is dead here, aged ninety-one years. He had been ill some time.

Mr. Edmunds was in the Senate from 1866 to 1891, a period of twenty-six years, and acquired a reputation as a statesman. Twice in the early eighties his name was presented in the Republican national convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination.

Though never President, he was known as adviser of Presidents. President Grant publicly acknowledged that Edmunds was one of the men to whom he was most indebted for counsel.

Born on a farm at Richmond, Vt., February 1, 1828, he studied and practiced law in his native town, and in 1851 he removed to Burlington, where he became Speaker of the House, then president of the Senate of the Vermont Legislature. In March, 1866, he was appointed to supply the vacancy in the United States Senate created by the death of Solomon Foot.

After leaving home she was taken over many of the battlefields in France. She went to France with the first Harvard medical unit.

Among the Greater Bostonians on board are Mr. and Mrs. Percy Goodfellow and children of Dedham, David and Maurice Carloof of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Savory of Brookline and Walter H. Reeves of the Hotel Lenox.

W. S. Kerr and Charles L. Hill of Cohasset leave on the Cunarder for a visit to England, where they will buy brood stock for C. W. Barron's Cohasset estate.

DEMAND REPEAL OF WAR-TIME 'DRY' LAW

New York, Feb. 28.—The fundamental rights of grape growers and wine makers have been violated and their properties confiscated without just reason or just compensation by prohibition legislation, according to resolutions adopted at the annual convention of the American Wine Growers' Association.

Members of the Anti-Saloon League were accused of having conducted an "un-American and Bolshevik campaign of destruction" against the grape men.

Another resolution adopted by the 300 delegates present demands immediate repeal of the war-time prohibition law. The resolution touching upon the activities of the Anti-Saloon League said:

"This organization, claiming a monopoly of moral forces, is engaged in the immoral work of trying to ruin property legally acquired and held, and if there should be great social and economic disturbances on account of the enforcement of prohibition it would be largely due to the gospel of destruction and confiscation preached by this league."

The report of President Hiram S. Dewey showed that California has 230,000 acres of vineyards; New York, 60,000; Ohio, 10,000, and New Jersey, 5,000 acres. These States, it was said, will be the chief sufferers. One delegate, representing a vineyard of 3,000 acres in Los Angeles County, Cal., declared that under prohibition entire fortunes of the vineyard owners will be wiped out.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN FEBRUARY 28, 1919. BOSTON.

It Behooves Us to Speed and Not Stint Justice to Veterans

The most pitiable sight in the United States today is the soldier or sailor who in the supreme hazard of war has served his country bravely and well, has come home full of joyous anticipation of a grateful welcome, has been met at the dock with cheers, paraded amidst acclaim, given a half hour of fleeting glory and then left stranded, penniless, hungry, jobless—forgotten.

It is a sight which ought to bring the blush of burning shame to the cheek of every stay-at-home American, who has to bear no racking memories of the awful privations and shocking cruelties of war, who is in the full and undisturbed enjoyment of the security and blessings of peace and who is DOING NOTHING to bring simple justice to that neglected veteran to whom we all owe so much.

If it were a spectacle infrequent, and if it were the result of no lack of public gratitude and public preparation, but merely the fault of the veteran's own improvidence, though it would not then be shameful it would still be sad.

Unhappily it is common, and the veterans who suffer from it are NOT TO BLAME.

They have acquitted themselves admirably. They responded to the call to the colors willingly, left their homes and their loved ones with patriotic fervor, accepted without murmuring the deprivations of the military life, fought the trained foe with a resistless valor which brought victory months ere it had been expected and added new glory to the American name and new lustre to the nation's flag.

No more deserving men ever have fought in war or come home in triumph expecting that a grateful country would reward them at least with food, shelter and a chance to earn an honest living as restored members of their several communities.

And now that they are back, and now that each day brings others of them back by hundreds and by thousands, what is the welcome by which they are received?

The jobs which they left are filled by others or no longer exist.

In a great number of instances the dependents whom they left at home under promise by the nation that allotments would be forthcoming have failed to receive the expected pittance.

From their own small service pay, after their share of the allotments had been subtracted, they were not able to accumulate funds with which to meet the difficult transition.

They have been dumped forth into communities unready, often without a day's margin of provision.

And their search for the means of honorable self support has in a large and growing percentage of instances been unavailing.

Between them and dire want stands the thinnest line of that excruciating thing which men call charity.

And even it is uncertain.

This, citizens, is the bald and bitter truth as to a condition nation wide; a condition each day growing more acute, a condition which, if not remedied, will surely lead to crimes of necessity, the guilt for which will not lie upon the desperate, famishing perpetrators, but upon US torpid and protected folk, who by our inertia or our indifference are directly responsible.

We sent these men into the jaws of death with a solemn promise to take care of those who came back and of their dependents while they were gone, and we ARE NOT KEEPING THAT PROMISE.

Unless we make good in full measure in our payment of this debt of honor we shall not only be ashamed, but we shall justly be scorned.

When the next war comes, as in all human probability come it will, we shall have to look back upon this default as a menace to our protection, for it will arise to confront us and to make difficult the drafting of a new army of defenders.

Citizens, we cannot afford such shame or such short-sightedness.

Those of us who are not sensitive to the obligations of honor must be made to realize the dictates of expediency.

This will NOT BE A SAFE COUNTRY if hundreds of thousands of returned soldiers and sailors have to form a bread line.

We may ignore and neglect them when they are hundreds or only thousands, but we shall not be able to ignore or neglect them when they number millions.

They are going to have control in large measure of the taxing power and of the administrative powers of our governments.

The more quickly and the more generously we act to vote them the means of self-respecting transition and to provide them with opportunities of adjusting themselves back into the body of self-supporting citizenship, the less will be the accounting which they will surely exact of us when they gain the rein hand in the political saddle.

We dislike intensely to have to key our appeal for justice to the selfish note of mere expediency, but it is the note which the greedy and stingy exploiters and economic passengers among us can sometimes understand when the higher appeal finds them deaf and dumb.

Whatever the note, there can be no further blinking the fact.

IN ITS TREATMENT OF THESE VALIANT VETERANS OUR INSTITUTIONS ARE CHALLENGED; AND IT BEHOOVES US TO SPEED AND NOT STINT THE MEASURES OF JUSTICE.

SMILING AT YOUR OFFICE FORCE

Mr. Employer, why don't you take a genuine human interest in the men who are working for you?

Looking at them from the standpoint of machines by which you make money is not the fair view to take.

You cannot measure what it would mean to the men in your place if you would get rid of that cold, unfeeling expression which is on your face and greet them with a pleasant word or even a smile as you pass through the different departments.

If you did realize it, you would drop your disinterested manner.

From a purely selfish motive your profits would be larger if you treated your men white.

The getting of better results should appeal to you if the humane standpoint makes no impression.

But if your heart is not in sympathy, the mere changing of your manner won't help for long.

Which Shall It Be?

Patter and Chatter

By William F. Kirk

Old Wars and New

"THIS latest war was kinda tough," admitted old Hank Spink,
"But them that think this war was ROUGH has got another think!
They should have saw the way we fit when marching to the sea!
I went along with Sherman, and he banked a heap on me.
'Wal, Hank,' he says, 'shall we go on or shall we beat it back?'
When Sherman wanted good advice he allers hit my track.
I knew the gang we had along and seen they was true blue.
'March on!' I says to Sherman, and, by heck! we marched on, too!

"I'VE heard of Chateau-Thierry and them other furrin towns,
And how our fightin' Yankees sorter had their ups and downs,
But memories of them older Yanks keeps comin' back to me—
How me and Sherman led 'em from Atlanty to the sea!
A lot of them was good and sick and all of them was lame,
But they didn't feel like quittin' when they seen that I was game!
When Sherman thought our chance was slim he says 'How 'bout it, son!'
'March on, old sport!' I says to him—and that's jest what he done!

"IT uster make me kind of sad, the way them boys would sink,
But every bit of faith they had they put in old Hank Spink!
And every time one would drop back I'd say a word or two,
And right away he'd hit the track and keep a-plugging through!
And Sherman! Say! When things looked dark and he was losin' hope,
He'd look fer me, he would, by gee! to get the latest dope!
Them soldiers would have died fer us as willin' as could be,
When me and Sherman took 'em from Atlanty to the sea!"

Letters to the Editor

Want Their Discharge

Editor Boston American:

In a recent edition of one of the daily newspapers an article was published stating the means by which a soldier could obtain his release from the army, by presenting affidavits showing that his services were needed at home or in an industrial occupation. This is covered by a War Department Order, Circular No. 77.

This order does not seem to apply to the soldiers of the Depot Brigade at Camp Devens, as all applications have to go through military channels and a board of three officers, with the result that applications are returned disapproved.

It doesn't seem right that men with dependents and positions open to them should be held while men are being discharged every day with no dependents and, in a large majority of cases, no positions in sight.

If the government considers this work so essential, why not give the soldiers who have been discharged and who are unable to obtain employment a chance to replace the men who are needed at home and in industrial occupations.

The average soldier, after deducting allotment and insurance from his pay, draws approximately $9 monthly, or, in other words, thirty cents a day, while civilians working in the camp, and doing the same work, are getting $4 or $5 a day. The majority of the men of the Depot Brigade are drafted men who were taken from their homes and positions and understood they were to serve during the period of emergency, and now that the urgent need of men is over, why is it the men cannot be discharged?

As the Boston American is doing everything in its power for the enlisted men, the men of the Depot Brigade would appreciate any efforts on its part in bringing the situation to the attention of those who have authority to remedy it.

LESSON TO BE DRAWN FROM A MAN WHO "GAVE"

By Winifred Black

HAVE you head the story about the young man who came ashore from a transport the other day somewhere at an Atlantic port?

He was pale and thin and in his haggard eye was written the story of hideous pain and haunting, dreadful memories. He limped a little, and pinned to his soldier's tunic was an empty sleeve—but he held his head up and his mouth was firm.

In the crowd waiting on the dock were people who knew him, some kissed him, some cried and some said in cheerful, matter-of-fact voices:

"Hello, old man; you made it, after all, didn't you?"

And these the soldier answered in the American fashion:

"Sure!"

A woman standing in a group of strangers stepped forward and spoke to the soldier.

Her eyes were blazing with excitement and her voice trembled emotionally.

"Pardon me," she said, "but would you mind telling me how you lost your arm?"

The soldier drew himself up and answered her, courteously, but in a voice of mingled steel and flame:

"Madam, I didn't lose my arm—I gave it!"

What would you give to be the mother of a man like that? How many years of your life?

How many drops of blood straight from your pulsing veins?

And he's only one of thousands and hundreds of thousands—yes, millions, of just exactly such men as that.

Americans—Yankees from New England, Californians and Oregonians from the Coast; Southerners from Virginia and South Carolina and Georgia, Middle Westerners from the great grain States by the Great Lakes.

Tall lumbermen from Maine, planters from up the bayou in Louisiana, Mississippi cotton growers, Iowa farmers, Chicago bank clerks, San Francisco day laborers.

We Have Learned

Rich men's sons born to luxury and ease. Poor boys who have had to struggle and fight for every mouthful they have ever had to eat.

How strange it is that we never realized before what stuff they were made of!

How strange it is that we forgot all about the noblest qualities of other souls, and thought of them only as we saw them on the surface!

Some of them we knew or thought we knew — well, and yet we knew nothing about them, except the vain, shallowest outside.

Thoughtless, heedless, careless, even selfish, we believed many of them to be—and perhaps many of they were these things—until the great magician touched them with his wand and bade them live up to their better selves, and here they are showing us all what blind creatures we have been, every one of us!

Men Every Inch

Oh, yes, they're joking and laughing, and smoking and telling stories—they're no saints and we wouldn't love them half as much as we do if they were—but, oh, they are baring their breasts to steel and laughing with joy to do it—because of an ideal!

How are they going to measure us who are left behind—when they come back? What shall we do to be worthy of them?

Oh, let's work and work and work!

Let's give, and give, and give—and all the time let's hold up our heads, throw back our shoulders and walk as if we stepped to the tune of music singing in our hearts. And whatever else we do, let's smile, and smile not only with our lips—but with our hearts.

WILSON ASTONISHED PALACE SERVANTS

How Mr. Wilson astonished the palace servants—said "Sir" to King George, was discovered at work on his own typewriter, took the right hand seat in the King's carriage, and Mrs. Wilson omitted the "curtsey" when she met the Queen, is a story that will go down in history beside those told of Ben Franklin at the French court. Fascinatingly told in next Sunday's

Clergymen Arrested
Sentiment Is Power
Educated Corpuscles

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Write down on your tablets that sentiment is power. When two French brothers or old friends meet, they embrace. For years this has seemed funny to Englishmen and Americans. Too much sentiment they thought.

Yesterday a French soldier, twice wounded, sent his greatest treasure, his medal of war, to Clemenceau. The soldier, withholding his name, represents French sentiment.

Clemenceau burst into tears when he read the soldier's letter. He also represents French sentiment.

Such sentiment won the war against Germany.

Clemenceau wept when he read the letter from the soldier telling him, "You deserve the war medal and so I send you mine." But the same Clemenceau did not weep when he was shot. In spite of his great age, he dashed from his car at the would-be murderer.

The power of sentiment has made France win her fights and maintain her nationality for more than a thousand years with enemies all around her. Men like Clemenceau, who weep in admiration of a simple soldier's kindness and laugh at a bullet wound in the lungs, WIN THEIR BATTLES.

Have you theories about germs, for instance, the notion that "the importance of germs is much exaggerated, largely imaginary"? If so, explain these FACTS. They had the Spanish influenza at Nome in Alaska. White people listened to warnings about germs and were careful. Only thirty-four of them died. Natives did not worry about the influenza. They took "mental treatment," as it were. And ONE THOUSAND of them died.

Of course, it was not merely the indifference of natives that made them die. All natives, everywhere, brought suddenly into contact with a "germ disease," die rapidly. For instance, ordinary measles breaking out among Alaskan natives will kill nearly all of them without seriously injuring whites.

This is because the white corpuscles or leucocytes in the blood of white people have been educated to fight disease germs through coming in contact with them for centuries. The savage leucocytes are ignorant, like the men in whose veins and arteries they live. They don't know what to do with the germ when it comes.

Wonderful is education. Even the white corpuscles in your blood must have it to protect you from revolutionary diseases, just as the people of a nation must be educated to protect themselves from revolutionary outbreaks.

Those who wonder how much steel we export to Europe will be interested in this. An entire factory, including 334,000 pounds of machinery especially built, has been shipped from Chicago to Italy. It will be used there to make steel poles for telegraph wires. The whole of Europe has specialized for four years in steel and iron production. They will make what they need and sell to us if we let them. This country will require a heavy tariff on steel and iron, if wages are to stay near where they are now.

Two clergymen are arrested in Massachusetts. They had been acting as leaders of strikers in the textile mills and are accused of assaults and "loitering."

WHY is everybody surprised when Christian ministers put themselves at the head of complaining workmen?

Look back nineteen hundred years and you will find One preaching Christianity, causing serious disturbances and making "assaults" on the local financiers, "the money changers."

Everybody knows what happened to the Founder of Christianity when the conservative Roman government got Him. Conservatism seems unable to endure one thing, which is the sight of a clergyman actually taking seriously the teachings of Christianity as regards the poor.

A clergyman, neatly laundered, advising the poor to be patient and wait for their reward in Heaven is highly applauded, never arrested. A clergyman leading workers in the effort to get what they call "justice" is locked up. Which of the two would the Founder of Christianity lock up if He were the judge on the bench?
